How Does She Pay?

"Too Bad," Said the Boy Over the Hills, New Styles Bewildered Bolsheviki

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1921.

Read the National City Bank's pamphlet on our German export trade and you will wonder where Germany gets the money, how her statesmen manage. In the year ending 1914 we sent Germany goods worth $340,000,000 and imported $191,000,000, balance in favor of the United States $149,000,000. In the year just closed our exports to Germany are again in our favor. Buying from us gigantic quantities of cotton and copper, Germany with her depreciated currency must pay in dollars. How does she manage it?

This government needs about five thousand millions for spending in the coming year. It is running behind in collections, and there is much talk of economy. Could any economy be simpler, easier, more rational than bringing American troops back from Europe?

What good are they doing? Germany and France both would like to have them stay. Perhaps, but that doesn't interest the American taxpayer. He would like them to come home and stop spending his money.

To know how swiftly and straightly this world is going to the devil, financially, read Frank Cobb's article, "Economic Aspects of Disarmament." In 1910 Lloyd George said the world, spending two and a quarter billions yearly for war, could not endure the strain. It did not endure. War came in 1914.

Now that the war is over the world's nations are spending from eight to ten billions a year on war. The war wiped out three hundred and forty-eight thousand millions of the world's wealth. Now it takes the interest on two hundred thousand millions to keep the world ready for the next war.

That has got to change or the world is bankrupt.

When the next big war comes, if nations are foolish enough to permit it, it won't make any difference who wins or loses, for, as Frank Cobb says, "victor and vanquished alike will perish in the ruins of the civilization that they have destroyed."

A boy of fourteen admits wrecking a Delaware and Lackawanna train, killing two, injuring others. He wanted to see something smash, repeatedly put pieces of metal on the tracks, at last succeeded, and looked at the wreck from the top of a tree.

He was caught attempting another wreck and told that he had killed two men. He replied, "that is too bad." The authorities don't know what to make of him such callousness about them. Plenty of Kings, full grown, have done the same thing on a big scale, wrecking not trains instead of trains, and when told they had killed thousands or millions they, too, have said, "that's too bad," immediately planning other wrecks.

The navy asks a law to forbid selling war decorations because it "lessens their sentimental value." If those that earn the decorations were decently treated by the government, fewer decorations would be sold or pawned. In Chicago crippled and gassed soldiers are actually in the Poorhouse.

"Over the top to the Poorhouse," is the new thrill. Mr. Fox might make a picture out of that.

Infantry, yes, with the aid of trenches, barbed wire, barrage fire, tanks, flying machines and a few other novelties.

But what in Mr. Denby's opinion did battleships do in the last war? They had one fight without definite result, victory, or meaning in the North Sea. Then they went back to hide from submarines and, as Mr. Denby may learn from British records, British battleships, carefully hidden away, were protected by lashing merchantmen alongside them.

The flying machines, more than all infantry and battleships combined, will win the next war. Mr. Denby surely learned something when he saw an armored German warship nearly a thousand feet long sunk by a bomb from an aeroplane, the bomb not touching the ship, simply falling into the water beside it, and sinking the ship by the impact of the water.

Bewildered Bolshevikt are learning that the value of pure theory is limited. At first they said, "We will make money ridiculous and thus destroy capitalism." They certainly made their money extremely ridiculous. Now they find that the finest theories must have real money in order to buy anything.

Silver roubles are to be issued in September. Each will be worth ten thousand paper roubles. The Russian paper rouble, worth fifty cents in 1914, is now worth one two-hundredth part of a cent. Curiously enough, the only paper money the peasants will take is the old "Romanoff rouble," made when the Czars were still in power.

Somebody in Russia ought to have known that what the world does for twenty-five thousand years, using money, for instance, is probably convenient and necessary.

COAKLEY TELEGRAM FORGED, SAYS COUNSEL FOR TUFTS

Newton Aviator Leaps to Death

PLUNGES OUT HOTEL WINDOW

Victim Believed to Be Son of E. C. Adams, Newton Schoolmaster

A man, believed to be the son of Dr. Enoch C. Adams, head master of the Newton Classical High School, plunged to the sidewalk from his room on the fourth floor of the West End Hotel, Portland, Me., early today, and was fatally injured, according to dispatches to the Boston American from the Maine city. He died in a hospital at noon.

Papers and documents found among his effects indicate that he was an aviator and that his name was "H. S. Adams."

Positive identification has been rendered difficult by the fact that Dr. Adams and his family are at their Summer camp, Lake Taconnet, Me., and beyond the reach of the telephone.

The dead man is reported to have reached the hotel shortly after three o'clock this morning, said to have registered and gone at once to his room.

At 5:30 he replied to a call he had left to be waked. Nothing more was heard from him for an hour and a half, when he plunged into the street in front of the hotel.

He had apparently torn off the heavy wire screen from the window and pitched himself head foremost to the pavement. As he fell his left arm caught on a telephone wire and was almost severed from the body. His head was crushed in and he sustained internal injuries.

A number of logbooks such as are used by naval aviators were found in his suitcase. They indicated that he had been stationed at Pensacola, Hampton Roads and Bay Shore, Newspaper clippings referred to "Sky" Adams, who had operated as a civilian flier near Hampton Roads.

On one of the logbooks were the words "sent to R. C. Adams, West Newton, Mass." Another of the logs referred to "Schuyler A. Adams."

AMERICAN SUGAR PASSES DIVIDEND

New York, Aug. 10.—Directors of the American Sugar Refining Company at their meeting today passed the common dividend of 1¾ per cent., due at this time.

Most of the common stock of this company is held by New England investors and for many years has been regarded as yielding a sure income return.

It is estimated that they alone will lose more than half a million dollars by the omission of this dividend. The stock exchange valuation of this issue declined $3.12½ a share to 87¾ today, or within about five points of its record low price.

The regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. was declared on the preferred stock.

Commissioner Husband said extra precautions were being taken as a result of wholesale efforts to smuggle to aliens.

Harding to Take Long Rest if Congress Adjourns

By Associated Press.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Should Congress recess late this month President and Mrs. Harding may leave Washington for an extended vacation, it was said today.

The President has hoped that he might make a trip to the Pacific Northwest this Fall but it is not now considered likely that he will get that far away from the capital. If he does find opportunity for a vacation, it is probable he will select some place within a few hours ride of the White House.

Mr. Harding's next speaking engagement is in Birmingham, Ala., in October, and it is believed probable that during that trip he may stop at Atlanta and one or two other Southern cities.

They were found in a secluded corner of the country, eight miles north of New Berlin. Bentley was working in the field on the farm of John Mintee. The girl, attired in boy's clothing, was working in the farmhouse kitchen.

"Fiance" of New York Miss, Working as Farmhand, Insists a Mistake Has Been Made

By International News Service.

Monticello, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Who "done wrong" to pretty, blue-eyed, trusting Mary Holdowanetz?

"Not I," said Jack Brown, a farmhand here today.

Mary caused a country-wide sensation yesterday when she sprang a regular "Madamoiselle De Maupin" story of how a girl named Carolyn Schimeck had received her into believing her a man—"her man" at that, and made love to her for two years with promises of marriage.

"Jack Brown" was the pseudonym of the young sweetheart, Mary says, and she found out to her sorrow that "Jack" had been "spooling" her.

But when reporters found "Jack Brown" working as a farmhand on the Kutcher farm here today, he insisted he was just plain Jack Brown, without any quotation marks, and that he had made love to Mary as any gentleman might, but that "nothing came of it."

Jack is working among men on the farm and living in the room with four other hands, and to all appearance is what he says he is.

He hasn't much beard, but during his courtship of Mary the latter says he told her he need a preparation to take off the hair so that he needn't shave.

"I'm from Tillery, N. C.," said Jack today. "I came North three years ago. I admit I asked Mary to marry me, but nothing came of it. I don't know why she should want to sue me.

"My name is just Brown and I never heard the name of Carolyn Schimeck before."

Mary Still Sure "Jack" Is a Girl

New York, Aug. 10.—"Jack Brown" may insist he is just plain Jack Brown, but Mary Holdowanetz, who believes she has been badly fooled in the great love affair of her life, is not going to be stung a second time.

"It's a girl," says Mary.

Mary has ardent love letters from Jack, and later letters from a Carolyn Schimeck of Kingston, N. Y., referring to a mutual love affair and to her "brother Jack" who has gone away. She also has a letter from Carolyn's brother, Edwin, asking her to send back the ring that Carolyn gave her.

This ring, she says, was given her by "Jack" as an engagement ring. Mary says she doesn't care what the "Jack Brown" at Monticello may say about his sex or the affair she knows now, for she "was convinced" when I found out it was Carolyn, not Jack," said Mary. She cried and said she couldn't bear to tell me the truth. She got the idea of playing boy when she was a conductorette on the Delancy street cars."

Mary doesn't care what becomes of "Jack" now, but she seeks redress because she wanted her time and might have married someone else.

Washington Orders Cantonment Dismantled in Economy Program

Word was received from Washington today that Camp Devens will cease to function as an army cantonment after September 1. Other cantonments which will be abandoned on this same date are Sherman, Ohio; Pike, Arkansas; Grant, Illinois; Jackson, S. C.; Bragg, N. J., and Meade, Md.

The closing of Camp Devens will be a sad blow to storekeepers in Ayer and adjoining towns, who have been doing a thriving business since the cantonment was opened in 1917. It will also mean the reduction of the Ayer police department to one-half its present strength.

Three big army divisions were mobilized at Camp Devens, the 26th, 76th and 12th, totalling 126,000 or more men. The first two divisions saw service in France, while the 12th, in command of Major-General Harry P. McCain, was held back because of the outbreak of the influenza epidemic.

When the armistice was signed thousands of men were mobilized at the camp under the leadership of Major-General McCain. Since then the place has been in charge of the 2th Infantry and unattached military units.

Last Summer the Reserve Officers' Training School held a session there, and lately the new Ninth Regiment, Massachusetts National Guard, and Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont outfits went through manoeuvres at the camp.

All camp property and equipment will be sold, government officials believe.

H. P. DAVISON TO HAVE OPERATION ON EAR

New York, Aug. 10.—Henry P. Davison's general health is good, but ear troubles from which he has been suffering for some time necessitates an operation, which will be performed this week, perhaps tomorrow.

This is the substance of a statement given out by Thomas W. Lamont, member of the house of J. P. Morgan & Co., at the corporation's offices at Broad and Wall streets, today.

SHOWERS AND WARMER WEATHER PREDICTED

Showers and warmer weather are both predicted for tomorrow by the experts of the United States Weather Bureau. The warm weather began making itself felt early today, when the temperature jumped six degrees from 71 between 5 and 10 o'clock. By 11 it had climbed an additional two degrees to 79.

NAVAL PROBE OF PLANE ATTACK UNDER WAY

Providence, Aug. 10.—A naval board of inquiry will at once begin a thorough investigation of the wounding of Miss Grace Buxton of Oakland Beach and the riddling of the motor boat in which she and four other picnickers were sailing when made the target of a naval seaplane, commanded by Lieutenant Edward T. Garvey, U. S. N., in Narragansett Bay.

Rear Admiral Robertson, commanding the naval destroyer force at Newport ,who characterized the shooting of the motor boat as "a piece of flamed stupidity," has issued orders for the convening of the board.

300,000 RUSSIAN CHILDREN LOST AND STARVING

By International News Service

London, Aug. 10.—Three hundred thousand Ruselan children, lost from their parents and blighted by disease and starvation, are wandering about the famine zone attempting to make their way to safety according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Helsingfors today.

In the Saratov district of Russia, in the heart of the situation zone, parents are drowning their children in large numbers rather than see them suffer the slow torture of death from starvation.

The Society of Friends, which is doing valiant relief work in Russia, reports that the hordes of hunger-stricken sufferers are fleeing town to Poland faster than the Red Cross doctors and other relief workers can disinfect them.

It is feared they will carry the germs of an epidemic into middle Russia.

Allen Hotly Resents Charges Questioned Paper Disappears From Court Exhibits

Counsel for District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex, on trial before the Supreme Court for alleged malfeasance, charged in open court today that a telegram from Daniel H. Coakley, which had been placed in evidence by the State, was a forgery.

Attorney Melvin M. Johnson, one of Tufts' lawyers, demanded to see the copy of the telegram.

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen, Tufts' chief accuser, explained that the copy had disappeared.

He rescinded the forgery allegation. "I am making a motion, not an accusation," said Attorney Johnson. "I do not charge you with wrong-doing."

The telegram was in connection with the arrest in Monroe case, Monroe, wealthy globe trotter, was "caught" with one Catherine E. Lord in an apartment in Cambridge.

Daniel H. Coakley was Monroe's lawyer, after the case was turned over to him by Sherman L. Whipple.

DROPPED DEST NEXT DAY.

It is Attorney-General Allen's charge that Tufts failed to prosecute from improper motives. Coakley has admitted getting a $12,000 fee.

The telegram was sent just before Tufts stopped prosecution. It read: "Matter satisfactorily arranged if money is available on Monday. Can close this whole affair as you would like to have it closed on Tuesday." It was signed by Coakley, and the next day Tufts dropped it, Allen alleges.

This Monroe-Lord case has been recognized as one of the most important brought against Tufts by Allen.

Attorney-General Allen promised to look for the copy of the disputed telegram.

He said it had disappeared, "possibly from this courtroom," but he did not think it had been lost there.

The state rested in rebuttal long before noon, and a recess was taken. A litt sur-rebuttal was to be put in

WITNESSES PUT ON TO IDENTIFY NEW MYSTERY WOMAN

later today. It was considered likely the arguments would be begun before night.

MYSTERY WOMAN.

Earlier testimony today bore on the identity of the mystery "Pennington woman" in the Stearns divorce case.

The State sprang a real surprise on the defence by bringing in evidence about this "mystery woman" against Tufts.

Attorneys for the accused District Attorney made strenuous objection and announced they would need time to consider the new evidence.

The State rested after putting in the testimony.

The "Pennington woman" figures in Attorney-General J. Weston Allen's charges as the "stress" who was engaged to entrap Captain Charles E. Stearns into a questionable situation as a result of a conspiracy between Tufts and Stearns' wife, who wanted a divorce.

Attorney Daniel H. Coakley, who was the woman's lawyer in the divorce matter, had testified for Tufts that he believed the "Miss Pennington" was none other than Miss Johnny Penn, an old friend of Stearns.

NOT THE SAME PERSON.

Today's evidence, put in by the State, was to the effect that "Miss Penn" and the Pennington woman were two entirely different women.

That the Pennington woman was a "Mrs. P. M. Pennington," and that their appearance and their handwriting were different.

William E. Hingston, handwriting expert, examined handwriting of Miss Penn, since married, and "Mrs. Pennington," and declared that the chirography was different.

P. J. McTighe, a real estate operator, told of letting an apartment to "Mrs. P. M. Pennington," and that Stearns was not far from the apartment where Captain Stearns was "trapped."

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen in outlining the charges against Tufts in the Stearns case, said he would prove that Attorney Daniel H. Coakley, who recommended Mrs. Pennington, office adventuress, to the telephone company.

The significance of this testimony was that Coakley has been mentioned consistently in the Tufts case, sometimes as an alleged co-conspirator.

Attorney Melvin M. Johnson for the defence contended that the evidence was not of proper rebuttal, but direct evidence.

He admitted that it was a great surprise and said that it would be necessary for the defence to spend some time digging up testimony to refute it.

The identity of "Miss Pennington," today said to be "Mrs. Pennington," has been one of the most bitterly contested points in the Tufts trial.

MRS. GORDON RECALLED.

Assistant Attorney-General William Flaherty called Mrs. Justine Gordon to the stand in rebuttal as soon as court opened.

Mrs. Gordon is chief witness in the "Sir" Thomas Mosette case. The State alleges she was the principal victim of Mosette, accused of being a charlatan.

Allen charges that Tufts failed to prosecute him. Tufts had testified that he did not prosecute Mosette because the alleged impostor gave Mrs. Gordon a note for the $11,000 he took from her, and therefore the matter was civil rather than criminal.

Mrs. Gordon denied that she had the note at the time of the second Grand Jury hearing. (This was the one in which Tufts had jurisdiction.) She denied that she had told Tufts of the existence of the note.

Dr. Leo Vincent Carney of St. Elizabeth's Hospital identified the hospital record relating to Matthew J. Horgan.

The Horgan records were introduced to refute the testimony of Daniel H. Coakley that he employed Horgan to follow Captain Charles E. Stearns and the Pennington woman.

ABLE TO WALK.

They showed that Horgan was a patient at the hospital from June 16 to July 1, 1919.

In cross-examination Dr. Carney admitted that the patient was able to walk about and as far as he knew had no medical impairment.

Attorney Henry H. Fuller, who was counsel for Charles E. Stearns, identified two letters written by some woman to Captain Stearns. They were received by Fuller from Captain Stearns in a letter dated [illegible]. They were turned over for identification.

The two letters were offered for identification after they had been shown to Attorney Henry H. Fuller. Later developments showed they had been written by Mrs. T. M. Pennington to Captain Charles E. Stearns, who sent them to Attorney Fuller.

The next witness was Francis J. McTighe, real estate operator in Cambridge. He testified that in 1918 he had owned the apartment house known as Dana Hall No. 321 and 321-B Harvard street, Cambridge. When Assistant Attorney-General Flaherty started to question McTighe concerning a lease of an apartment taken by Mrs. Pennington, who was a tenant from April 1, 1918, counsel for the defence objected, and one of the bitterest debates of the whole trial followed.

Attorney Johnson contended that this evidence should have been offered by the State in its direct case and was not rebuttal evidence.

ADMITTED BY COURT.

Chief Justice Rugg—"The court rules that this evidence is admissible so far as it serves to contradict the testimony of Mr. Coakley."

Attorney Johnson: "As this comes as a complete surprise I am afraid we shall have to ask the indulgence of the court for time to check up this evidence."

Special Assistant Attorney-General William Flaherty then examined Miss J. McTighe, owner of the Harvard street apartment in which Mrs. Pennington lived for twenty months.

She gave a deposit in February, 1918, and went to live there April 1 of the same year. She stayed there twenty months. He said he ordered her out. McTighe and Mrs. Fletcher Hall had no adjoining apartment and she got mail for a Miss Snow.

Cross-examination by Attorney Johnson:

Q—You say you called at the apartment of Miss Pennington? A—Yes.

Q—How old was she? A—She was neither a chicken nor an old hen.

Q—Can't you give us an estimate of her age? A—I should say between thirty and forty.

Q—Was she short? A—Yes.

Q—Dark or light? A—Light.

Q—Did she have a husband? A—Yes.

Q—Was he there? A—Yes.

Q—Was anybody else in the apartment? A—Several girls.

Q—How long did she live there? A—Until I ordered her out in July, 1919.

Q—Were you the owner of the house? A—Yes.

Frederick E. Moore, clerk in the auditing department of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, identified a contract signed by Mrs. P. M. Pennington. Special Assistant Attorney-General Flaherty attempted to introduce a letter signed by Daniel Sughrue on the letter head of Daniel H. Coakley recommending Mrs. Pennington to the telephone company.

The letter was excluded.

The contract showed that the number used when the telephone was installed was 619-M Cambridge and that it was changed in September, 1919, to Cambridge 25592.

It was testified that the telephone number was not published in the directory.

Attorney Johnson, addressing the court, complained that he had asked Attorney-General Allen four times for a particular exhibit. He added that he had reason to believe that the exhibit (No. 253) was not an original document.

Allen replied that the exhibit was a telegram from Daniel H. Coakley to Charles Connor and was read into the records as such. He said he had been unable to find it. He would continue to search for it.

Seven more witnesses were sworn in rebuttal.

Mrs. Anastasia Bachten, manager of a garage at No. 42 Harvard street, Cambridge, testified that a woman named Pennington, and her husband, kept a car in the garage.

IDENTIFIES REGISTER.

She identified the garage register and the signatures of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Pennington. Witness said she had seen Mrs. Pennington go into the house at No. 251 Harvard street about midnight on several occasions. She said they kept the car in the garage from April until June of 1919, when they got another car with too long a wheel-base to be accommodated there.

The garage book was admitted in evidence for the purpose of making a comparison of signatures. Counsel for the defence objected.

George P. Anderson, assistant secretary of the Boston Stock Exchange, was called to testify to the market value of American Bell Telephone and American Telegraph and Telephone stocks.

He testified to the following values: July 17, 1920, 120½; February 15, 1921, 115¾; June 24, 1903, 114½; March 27, 1919, 116.55; March 28, 1919, 123.15; April 1, 1919, $101.50.

Amos W. Hosworth, an assistant cashier of the Old Colony Trust Company, was called to testify in regard to the deposits and withdrawals of Daniel H. Coakley in June, October and November, 1917.

The admission of this evidence was objected to. Allen said: "We have not been able to examine this record because the Old Colony Trust Company has been required by Coakley not to submit any copies of his accounts.

"Therefore, we wish to submit this evidence in order to see whether there is anything which requires investigation."

Chief Justice Rugg—What part of Coakley's testimony does this contradict? A.—It cannot be answered until we have examined the account. The evidence is excluded, but Allen took the papers from the witness, including a bunch of deposit slips.

William E. Hingston, handwriting expert, was called.

He testified that the signatures on the telephone contract, on the garage book and the writing in one of the letters bringing them up for the same person.

Flaherty read one of the letters earlier introduced into evidence in the Stearns case. It was from Mrs. P. M. Pennington to Captain Charles E. Stearns.

"IMPATIENT TO SEE YOU."

Here it is: "Dear Charles—I guess our letters must have crossed each other. I wrote you Saturday, June 6. I received yours yesterday and was very glad to hear from you. I certainly wish I was there so you wouldn't be quite as lonesome. I think we could find plenty to do to take up your spare moments, don't you?

"Am sorry you had to put your trip off for even a few days, as I am so impatient to see you. Think, too, I have been so good, you know, and am feeling in the pink.

"How about yourself? Isn't it a shame you can't have more time to a vacation? Can't you get just two or three days more? Try, please. However, if you are at the car this Fall I certainly am going down for a few weeks.

"I think the trip back to New York to the car would be fine. I don't think I could make it in one day myself, but I could make Hartford and stop there overnight. Then I could start out early in the morning and make New York in about five hours.

"I know the road perfectly, having been over it to many times now, you see I am not a speed merchant. Sent my car to the repair shop today, as it has developed a rattle in the rear end, also a few canary birds and the steering gear squeaks.

"Must have it running smoothly when you arrive. It will be finished Saturday. It certainly is a beauty and I hope you will like it. Don't worry about the gloves. I think I have plenty, as you shall see. Now I shall expect to hear from you by telephone sometime in the afternoon of the 19th.

"Is that right? Cambridge, 629-M. Then how will it be? All right to meet you some place in the car and come to my house? We can arrange that over the telephone and do it differently from you before then. I shall have nothing to do from the time you arrive until you leave.

"Every minute you want me I am your's truly.

"About the quiet little spot where we can have something to eat and a bit of fun, leave that to me. How is Dr. Peabody? Tell him I certainly appreciate his fine care of me while I was ill. I was some sick that night from the fort to Washington. Hid study is good. It nearly knocked the fever out of me. When getter your decision, though, I think that will be good also.

WHAT P. M. MEANS.

"Oh, daddy? Will tell you what P. M. means when I see you. I refuse to write it, I hate it. It's terrible. Try and write me one more little note before you leave. You are some tripe writer. Yours always,

"P. M. P.

"Washington st., Dorchester, Mass.

"P. S.—I don't know the number of this house yet, so send letter to Dorchester as you always bring me up mail as soon as it arrive. Ah, June 13, 1918.

"P. S.—I am writing from my friend in the West, who is in Washington. You know, I told him about the charming gentleman I had met while at old Point Comfort. Explained to him how I was ill and how you rushed around to get the doctor for me.

"Nevertheless, you know you would not be offended when I tell you I gave him your name in full and all particulars. You understand, I shall tell you who he is and I want you to know him. Signed, P. M. Evening Star, afternoon."

Mrs. Agnes A. Stewart, proprietor of a garage at No. 242 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, testified that a Mrs. P. J. Pennington had had her car in the garage for a year. She put it in in July, 1918. It was a blue, four-passenger car.

SUGHRUE'S BROTHER.

Q—Did she give you a reference? A—Yes, Mr. Sughrue.

Q—What was he? A—I supposed she meant the brother of Michael J. Sughrue.

Q—Did you think he was a lawyer? A—Yes, I did.

Q—Was it the Mr. Sughrue in Coakley's office? A—I don't know. I supposed it was a brother of Michael J.

Cross-examination by Attorney Ranney:

Q—How old was this Pennington woman who kept a car in your garage? A—Sometimes she looked like eighteen and sometimes like twenty-three.

Q—Was she an attractive woman? A—Yes.

Q—When you mentioned Michael J. Sughrue you had in mind the former district attorney of Suffolk County? A—Yes.

Q—And you thought the Sughrue mentioned as the reference was his brother? A—Yes.

Joseph Leach, No. 82 Berkeley street, was called to testify about her brother, the late Matthew Horgan, who was engaged by Coakley for the Stearns case, according to Coakley.

The prosecution had offered hospital records to show that Horgan was ill when Coakley claimed he was working on the Stearns case. Miss Horgan said her brother had gone into business as a detective with a man named Scanlon.

CONTRADICTS TUFTS.

Attorney Richard J. Cotter, who represented the Old Colony Trust Company, in the so-called Newton "arson trust" cases, contradicted testimony of Tufts. He said he had a conference with Tufts and offered all the evidence he had gathered in the Levine-Budnick case.

He said Tufts asked him if a civil action were pending and when he told him that there was Tufts said the criminal case couldn't be tried until the civil matter was settled.

Cotter admitted under cross-examination that the civil matter was still pending.

ADVISES COMPANION OF SLAIN MAN TO TALK

Mrs. Louise Peet, who was acquitted last Fall of the murder of Jacob C. Denton, a wealthy mining man. She has visited Mrs. Madalynne Oberchain in her cell and given words of comfort and advice.

SLAIN BROKER HAD DEATH PREMONITION

Kennedy Told Mother of His Fear On Morning of Tragedy

International News Service.

Los Angeles, Aug. 10.—Belief that J. Belton Kennedy, murdered Los Angeles millionaire broker, received warning of his impending death a few hours before he was slain was expressed by officials today, following that he left on 12 hours before he was shot, told his mother "in fear" that death was near.

Before leaving home Friday morning preceding the night on which he was shot, the victim of his mountain cabin, in lonely Beverly Glen, young millionaire threw his arms around his mother's neck, laid his head on her shoulder and told her of his premonition.

"Mother I'm not going to live very long," he said. "I'm afraid I'll be 'put' I don't want you and father to worry about it."

Pressed for a reason, Kennedy said he "didn't know why he felt that way," but that he felt his death was near.

The theory that Kennedy had received a warning of his fate was substantiated by the fact that a note of warning, scribbled on a piece of writing paper, was found near the murder house the day after he was shot. This note, stating "murder 12 o'clock," was signed "A friend."

At the end of a conference of four and a half hours, Deputy District Attorney Thomas Lee Woolwine and Mrs. Madalynne Oberchain, held as a material witness in the murder, the former announced that he would place all the facts before the grand jury tomorrow.

Mrs. Louise Peet, accused of killing Jacob C. Denton, wealthy mining man, in June, 1920, made her appearance in the case today, when Mrs. Oberchain, the latter offered to discuss the case for the first time.

Hitherto the attractive prisoners has steadfastly refused to talk about her relations with Kennedy or Denton, in any way in clearing up the mystery of the killing.

Mrs. Peet, who was acquitted practically the same position last October, before going on trial for the murder of Denton, who was strangled in bed, was to the aid of Mrs. Obenchain and comforted her in her cell.

It is generally believed that she can give the other woman some timely advice. The cases are very similar, except that Kennedy was shot to death at the steps of his summer home Friday night.

THREE ALLEGED PICKPOCKETS CAPTURED

Quick Work by Plain Clothesman Lands Trio With Long Records

Quick thinking and quick work on the part of Special Officer John Manning of the Court square station resulted today in the arrest of three men charged by the police with being pickpockets with widespread and unsavory reputations.

The three men are known here as George Fitzpatrick, James Egan and Harry Meyers, all have an indefinite number of aliases and are declared by the detectives working on their case to have been arrested at least a dozen times. Meyers is alleged to have violated his parole from Sing Sing in 1916.

Manning saw them mingling with the crowd on the Dudley street edition of the Boston Sunday Herald today.

A moment later Meyers, he says, gave the others the "office" that a plain clothes man was present. This consisted of touching the lapel of the coat in a significant manner. The three, according to Manning, left on the next train. Manning followed and saw they were not working.

He left them and went to his station. A few moments later a report of a $50 larceny at the Rowe's Wharf station came to the police.

Manning rushed to the North Station in time to arrest the trio as they left an Elevated train.

They were held in $2,500 bail each for hearing August 12 on a charge of being vagabonds.

JOE WALCOTT, OLD TIME BOXER, SENTENCED

Joseph Walcott of Trumbull street, South End, an old-time heavyweight boxer, was sentenced today by Judge Dowd in Municipal Court to one year in the House of Correction. Walcott was found guilty of keeping a disorderly house. This is the most brazen case of vice traffic I ever heard of," said the judge. Eva Hartfield and Percy Johnson, who were found in the house, were given four months each in the House of Correction, while two other women, Alice Joseph Vattles and Anna Carver were given six months in the House of Correction, while two other women, Alice Jaken in the raid, defaulted.

Company officials announced today that thirty-eight other applications for old jobs had been received. The track force and barn employes are practically all back to work.

SIX AMERICANS FREED BY SOVIET

Slow Fulfilment of Red Pledge Imperils U. S. Relief of Stricken Millions

By Associated Press.

Riga, Letvia, Aug. 10.—Soviet Russia has released six American prisoners, who have arrived at Narva, Esthonia, but the fact that only this number of Americans have been sent out of the country was said here today to threaten a speedy lifting of the ban, perhaps the abandoning of negotiations for American famine relief for Russia.

The six released prisoners are Simon Kilmartin, Weston B. Estes, William Fitch, N. B. Kalamatiano, H. J. La Mare and Russell Pattinger.

The men were released under the promise made by the Soviet authorities at the time John R. Steelman arrested from American relief organizations for famine suffering Russia, reached Washington last week.

Of the released men Captain Emmet Kilpatrick of Uniontown, Ala., was captured by the Reds while with General Wrangel's forces in South Russia.

William Fitch and Dr. Weston B. Estes of New York are moving pictures photographers who went into Russia and were imprisoned last year.

Simon Kilmartin, Nicholas Kalamatiano, of Racine, Wis., has been in Russian prisons for nearly three years.

Henry J. La Mare lives in New York man, and Russell Pattinger's home is at 3649 West 12th street, San Francisco.

Preliminary negotiations between Director Brown and M. Litvinoff were opened this afternoon, despite the earlier indications that the two men would not confer, the American representative asking Litvinoff what the Soviet government's intentions were regarding the freeing of the other Americans in Russia. The conference were introduced by the Latvian premier.

PREACHER DURYEA JOINS HIS WIFE AND MAN WITH WHOM SHE FLED

LIVES WITH ELOPING COUPLE

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Clark Duryea, maintained preacher of Hollows Church, Monticello, who turned a deaf ear to the pleas of his wife for forgiveness after she had eloped with Earl Ver Nooy, a neighbor, has changed his mind and has gone to live with Mrs. Duryea and Ver Nooy on the farm of the latter's father.

This fresh complication of the marital tangle of the two families became known today.

Duryea gives as the reason for his strange move that he wishes to be with his two children, Gladys, nine years old, and Ross, twelve, and at the same time to permit their mother to "guide them as only a mother can."

FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE.

Mrs. Ver Nooy, who flatly refused to take back her sloping husband when he and Mrs. Duryea decided that they had made a mistake, has filed suit for divorce.

The story of the Duryea-Ver Nooy affair reads like that of Ruskin and the wife he gave to his artist friend.

Duryea was pastor of the so-called Holiness Church, one of the dogmas of which provides for nonresistance. When he learned that his wife and Ver Nooy had decided to elope he merely asked that she send him her address when she had "settled" with her new affinity. She promised to do this and sped away in an automobile with her two children and Ver Nooy.

DENY MARITAL RELATIONS

Later things turned out badly and with Ver Nooy she returned home. Mrs. Ver Nooy, however, refused point blank to forgive, much less forget, although both Ver Nooy and Mrs. Duryea denied having lived together as man and wife while they were away.

The two, therefore, motored away again and ultimately Ver Nooy found a place to live on the latter's farm.

Mrs. Duryea went with him and after getting "settled" remembered her promise to her husband and wrote him.

He had announced his intention of returning to his home in Brooklyn, but the letter from his wife changed his mind and sent him to the farm where he was welcomed by Ver Nooy and Mrs. Duryea. The three are reported living happily together.

Hungry Sharks Infest Coast as Bathers Frolic in Surf

Sharks of the man-eating variety are again infesting the Atlantic coast.

Driven to desperation by lack of food, the voracious sea tigers have left their Southern habitat and are in wait off resort shores, gazing hungrily at the frolicsome bathers.

Three were caught in one day at places as widely separated as points off Swampscott, Mass., and Cape May, N. J. In each instance the sharks were about eight feet long and weighed from 450 to 900 pounds.

Walley Kehoe, a fisherman, found a shark entangled in his mackerel net off Fisherman's Beach, Swampscott. Kehoe, who was alone, hailed the net to within striking distance, and killed the shark with a club.

While fishing with H. E. Derbyshire, retired Philadelphia manufacturer, in his yacht Cycle, off the Five Fathom Bank lightship, 20 miles at sea, Emory Eyesman caught two sharks.

STEEL MAN SAYS FOUR TRIED TO ROB HIM

Quartet Arraigned for Attempt to Seize Money and Pin On Avery Street

Charged with assault with intent to rob Frank L. Leyser of the Truscon Steel Company of Youngstown, O., on Avery street, four men were arraigned in Municipal Court today.

They were booked as John O'Leary, Dover street; William H. Mansfield, Yorktown street, Somerville; James Ware, Boston street, South Boston, and Leo Mack, Highland street, Dorchester.

Leyser said that he was leaning against a pole when the four men set on him, and while two attempted to steal from his pockets, the others seized a diamond cluster pin in his tie. Leyser fought so successfully that he broke up with his valuables and ran toward his hotel.

On the way he met Afroiman Cooley and Special Officer Harrigan of Division 4, who arrested the four men in a lunch room.

MRS. ALLAN RUSSELL HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Allan Russell, wife of Fletcher Russell of the Red Sox, of No. 132 Peterboro street, Boston, was painfully injured, and three automobiles were damaged, when struck by two other cars, said to have been racing on the Revere Beach Parkway, near Slade's mill.

According to the police the two racing machines struck the three automobiles while attempting to pass them. The damaged cars were those of Fitcher Russell, who was driving, a machine owned by Chester Hill, of No. 7 Central square, Lynn, and one owned by Ruth Locke, of No. 29 Ingleside street, Roxbury.

MAN AND WIFE HELD FOR THEFT OF AUTO

Following word received by Captain Alexander K. Armstrong at police headquarters that Harry Jacobson, twenty-two years old, and his wife Alice, twenty-one, had been married in Rochester, N. Y., on a lower court warrant charging larceny of an automobile from Arthur Cox, No. 15 Sherwood street, Cambridge, Policewoman Irene C. Rauch was assigned to the extradition papers and bring the woman back to Boston. This is the first of two such assignment Miss Lynch has received.

YORK BEACH BARS THIN AND ONE-PIECE SUITS

COFFEE, COCOA IMPORTS FROM BRAZIL INCREASE

Washington, Aug. 10.—While imports of rubber, hides, wool and other important South American commodities declined considerably during the past fiscal year, shipments of coffee and cocoa from Brazil showed marked advances, according to foreign trade summaries issued today by the Commerce Department of the exports of the Southern republics during the year ending June 30. WILL CLEAN UP SERVICE MEN'S CLAIMS

Government, American Legion and Red Cross to Co-operate in Campaign

By Associated Press.

Indianapolis, Aug. 10.—A nation-wide campaign by government officials, the American Legion and the Red Cross to effect a sweeping settlement of all claims against the government by ex-service men was announced at a conference of legion officials and government representatives at national legion headquarters here. The announcement immediately followed the signing of the Sweet bill in Washington, making possible immediate adjustments and the appointment of C. R. Forbes as director of the new veterans' bureau.

The clean-up campaign started today, plans having been made previously by Mr. Forbes and district representatives ordered into the field not later than August 15. It is expected to continue for at least four months, or until every community in every State has been reached.

Clean-up squads representing the government, the Legion and the Red Cross will tour the districts with authority to consider all cases of compensation, vocational training, hospitalization and medical and surgical treatment, according to Fred K. Hamilton, superintendent of co-operation and personal representative of Mr. Forbes at the conference.

U. S. NEUTRAL IN TURKISH AND GREEK WAR

Harvey at Supreme Council Says Attitude Is Same as When World War Began

By Associated Press.

Paris, Aug. 10.—The allied supreme council put the Silesian question, now apparently near a definite settlement, temporarily aside today while awaiting the report of the experts engaged in drawing the new boundary line between Poland and Germany in this area, apparently upon in principle by France and England yesterday.

The council decided that it would discuss the Greco-Turkish situation and German reparations today.

In taking up the former subject, the council decided unanimously to adopt as the basis of allied neutrality in the Greco-Turkish war without interfering with trading by private firms with either of the belligerent countries.

Ambassador Harvey said this decision was in conformity with the policy of the United States previous to the entrance of that country into the war and the council's finding.

Premier Lloyd George, in a speech advocating neutrality between the Greeks and Tuks, referred to American neutrality during the war, when the American market was open to both the allies and the central powers, adding that the latter were unable to take advantage of the purchase of war materials on account of the British blockade.

He asked Ambassador Harvey if such was his understanding of the question, and the latter answered that this was fully in accord with the American viewpoint.

Mrs. Aamlie Majlestig Muir today told reporters that she considered herself legally married to Muir since June 29, 1918.

The actress is Norwegian, and speaks English with a decided accent. She is said to be twenty-six or thirty-five years old and decidedly pretty.

SPANISH DRIVEN BACK IN WESTERN MOROCCO

Madrid, Aug. 10.—Hostilities between the Spanish and the Moorish tribesmen, which have been going on in eastern Morocco for the past three weeks and which have resulted in a virtual collapse of the Spanish campaign there, appear to have spread into western Morocco. The Spanish commandant at Tetuan reports that Rif tribesmen on Sunday attacked the blockhouse at Meljas, and that the garrison, after losing several men, was obliged to fall back upon Gookel-Arbee.

Broken Hearts Costly in Boston but Price Varies, Estimates Show

DIXIE ESMOND SAYS HER HEART IS WORTH $100,000.
MARY JOHNSON SAYS HER HEART IS WORTH $2,000,000.
PEGGY GRACE SAYS HER HEART IS WORTH $150,000.
MAE MATHER SAYS HER HEART IS WORTH $20,000.

ACCUSING MAIDS AND THE BALM THEY ASK

The men must pay if courts sustain the claims of these four women—"What is a girl's heart worth?" A woman lawyer was asked. The answer came immediately: "All she can get." These girls, who claim they were jilted, tell today how they arrived at the damage done in dollars and cents.

Compensation Asked by Hub Girls for Shattered Troth Ranges From $20,000 to $2,000,000 and Women Lawyers Say the Man's Fortune Is the Only Limit

BY HAZEL CANNING.

"A woman's heart, like the Koh-i-noor,
"Mounts to the price that's put on her."
—Coventry Patmore.

What's a woman's heart worth?

What's the value of a youthful, or semi-youthful, dented or dinted, or cracked, or scratched, or absolutely smashed heart?

Quote figures, please. Is $1,000 or $10,000 or $2,000,000 the correct amount?

And how's the expert going to decide, anyway?

This is a momentous question. This is a question of gravest import, since just lately in Boston, four damsels of varying experience, have set varying figures on their more or less frazzled little cardiac organs. Answering the question—"What's a girl's heart—a girl's broken heart—worth?" in this wise:

"A girl's damaged heart is worth $100,000 if it is worth a cent," declares Dixie Esmond. Go to Church Row, she tells you, who is now suing Broker George H. Perkins for that amount, for her own broken heart.

SNIFFS AT $100,000.

"Two low a figure," comes back Miss Peggy Grace, who is suing Robert M. Dobbins, Boston real estate man, for $150,000 in toto. Miss Esmond's heart may be worth only $100,000 but mine goes her's $50,000 better. You see, father is now concerned with my damaged affections, and values his loss at the extra $50,000."

But both of these, comparatively modest ladies, shrink into the background, an girls with shabby, hardly injured, tough little, unimpressible, comparatively sound cardiac organs, when Miss Mary Johnson, who is suing millionaire "Tight Wad" Yerxa for Albert Searles, for injuries to the Johnson heart, makes her bow upon the Breach of Promise stage.

Miss Johnson sniffs her dainty little nose held high in the air. "A mere $160,000, or a mere $150,000—as mere damage," says she, "why bother at all. If the damage is so paltry?

"My dear, if Victor Searles pays me the full two million for which I am suing him, those measly dollars can never make up to me for the anguish, the bitter agony, the pity of friends, the general unexplained position, which his deceit has caused me. A broken heart is worth to a girl, more money than most heart smashing Romeos have in coin of the realm, to pay out."

WORTH WHAT SHE CAN GET.

Verily, brethren, hearts are high! They are the one commodity that has not suffered from the present financial depression. Now, these figures above, have all been quoted by the ladies whose hearts were concerned.

Miss Mae Mather of Malden, who is suing John J. Butler, former football star, for $20,000, sets the astounding example in modesty. But she is the exception which proves the rule. The Boston women lawyers—a whole bevy of them, come to the front, claiming that women with the higher priced hearts are right in suing for breach of promise, and that a woman's heart is worth—well, sisters—is worth just all the man pelies for it.

As Miss Edith M. Haynes, former president of the Massachusetts Association of Women Lawyers, explained:

"If a young woman can get a million-dollar verdict for breach of promise, she deserves to be congratulated. The humiliation, the unhappiness, the expense a girl goes to in cases sisted.

U. S. DISARM WOMEN, SUGGESTS MISS ROBERTSON

Murders by Fair Sex Rouse Congresslady—Says Sisters Really Want War

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 10.—"Compulsory disarmament of women" was suggested today by Alice Robertson, Oklahoma's lady Congressman. With murders by women on the increase, she declared it was necessary as disarmament of nations.

The lady from Oklahoma" had been asked to comment on the shocking and growing tendency of fair sex to kill off the male population.

"The women talk so much about disarm—well, why don't they disarm?" she demanded.

"Women want war," the lady Congressman declared. "Look at the so-called women's organizations. They're filled with advertisements of military academies; women clamoring for disarmament send their boys to military academies and the stores continue to sell boys soldier suits of war.

"Men are not so bad. Women call them cruel and unjust, but they're not. They should be remembered that men who are bad had women for their mothers. But to disarm only the women—that would be unjust. There should be compulsory disarmament of men too."

WALTHAM MAN ALIVE, WIFE BELIEVES

Buffalo Police, However, Drag Creek on Theory Woodbury Was Robbed and Slain

Mrs. Arthur A. Woodbury, wife of the former Waltham alderman for whose body the police of Buffalo are dragging Scajaquada Creek near New York city, still clings to the hope that her husband is alive and will be found in some hospital. The Buffalo police believe the man has been slain.

Given on the information that a water soaked pocketbook identified as having been the property of the missing man, had been discovered on the bank of the creek, failed to shake her confidence that ultimately Woodbury would be found alive.

Mr. Woodbury, who was employed as a salesman by the S. A. Gumpert Company of Brooklyn, N. Y., disappeared from the Lafayette Hotel, Buffalo, on July 26. He was well known in Waltham, where he had lived at 1 Beacon street, having served as alderman, and as a prominent worker in church and fraternal circles.

On the day of his disappearance from Buffalo Mrs. Woodbury received a letter from him stating that he had made the acquaintance of a man named Lou, and that he intended making a trip to Erie in company with the new friend. Woodbury never arrived in Erie.

Mrs. Woodbury yesterday received another letter. It was unsigned and merely stated that "important papers of Mr. Woodbury" had been found by detectives in the employ of the S. A. Gumpert company. She knows of no important papers her husband might have been carrying, or any reason why he should have been in possession of such things.

It is known, however, that Woodbury carried a very valuable watch and a considerable sum of money on him when he disappeared.

TANGO TROT CURE FOR IMPROPER DANCING

New York, Aug. 2.—Real artistry is the cure for "the poison generated during the past few years by improper dancing," demanded by the delegates to the annual convention of the International Association of Masters' Association in session here today.

Two of the most artistic steps, to be known as the Tango Trot and the Porto-Povich, were displayed before the convention and warmly approved by the dancing masters.

A Pittsburgh policewoman, who declared that block parties at which thousands fox-trotted on the street had done a tremendous amount in Philadelphia, was loudly applauded by the instructors.

TELLEGEN GETS HIS CLOTHES AT LAST

Visits "Gerry's" Warehouse and Moves War Srobe to His Hote

New York, Aug. 10.—Lou Tellegen, famous actor, who is suing for a legal separation from his wife, Geraldine Farrar, is temporarily relieved of at least one fear as a result of appearance in connection.

Tellegen will not have to stay in bed to allow his valet to press the only suit of clothes available to wear. He is all dressed up today in some of the finest and other fine habiliments that his wife refused to allow him to obtain by calling at the house—she had hidden them—and sent his wardrobe to a warehouse.

Lou, however, was not to be foiled; he enrolled a secret ally or two and a couple of porters and with his banner and moved the wardrobe from the warehouse to his hotel.

The secretaries separated the shirts, ties, suits and other things, while Lou languidly posed in front of the Fulton Theatre for the camera, after which he stated that his gallantry would not allow him to discuss at this time the real story behind his separation suit from "Gerry."

As for the girl, Leona herself, her nerves were so shattered by rude process servers, who served a "paper" upon her as she emerged from a limousine in front of apartment that she has fled to her mother's camp in the Adirondacks.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS 1780 CONSTITUTION

Augustus P. Loring Loses Fight to Have Convention of 1919 Form Printed

Augustus P. Loring of Beverly today lost his fight with his colleagues of the joint special committee of the Legislature appointed to prepare for the printed revision of the general laws of the Commonwealth.

A majority of the Judges of the State Supreme Court today handed down a decision on his petition for a writ of mandamus to compel the committee to print in the first volume of the general laws the Constitution and Form of Government adopted by the people after the Constitutional Convention of 1919.

In their decision today the majority of the Supreme Court Justices told that the original Constitution adopted in 1780 is still the supreme law of the Commonwealth, and is to be printed as such with the amendments adopted in 1919 to follow exactly as the amendments to the Constitution of the United States follow the original.

SAYS GROWTH OF CITIES IN U. S. MUST BE CHECKED

Chicago, Aug. 10.—General Pietro Badoglio, second in command of the Italian armies during the World War, who is in Chicago, said today: "American cities are growing at an amazing rate. This growth must be checked at all costs. I have seen between Chicago and New York great stretches of farm land devoid of habitation. This land must be cultivated to keep up the balance between industry and agriculture. If the principle is ignored, the United States will become more dependent on imports than England herself.

Fresh From Paris

PARIS, France.

ONE of the new Paris evening capes of white opera satin is most alluring when it turns its back, for then may be seen to best advantage the large motif of black embroidery and jet that gives character to the wrap. The double pleating which forms the long pointed collar is of fine black net.

THE short skirt, as Paris realizes, is still liked by too many women for the Grandes Maisons to ignore it completely, and so it appears in a becomingly slender dance frock of black satin, fringed with white monkey fur. The deeply oval neck line and the fringe outlining the back of the corsage are distinctly unusual.

LEADERS AGREE ON TAX CUT OF $600,000,000

House Republicans Begin Drafting Revenue Bill to Yield $3,075,000,000

By Associated Press.

Washington, Aug. 10.—President Harding having intervened to enlighten out tax revision differences between leaders of the House of Representatives and treasury officers, ways and means committee Republicans today set to work to draft a measure bill to yield $3,075,000,000, or approximately $600,000,000 less than had been suggested by Secretary Mellon.

His total was agreed upon last night at a White House conference attended by the Treasury secretary, Joseph Gillett, Representative Mondell of Wyoming, the Republican floor leader; Chairman Fordney of the Ways and Means Committee and other prominent House Republicans.

At the same time decision was reached to cut federal offerings to $1,520,000,000 from estimated expenditures for this fiscal year, leaving a total of $4,024,000,000, as against the Treasury's estimate of $3,000,000.

To avoid be accomplished, it was opined, by somewhat drastic cuts in estimates for the War, Navy and Agricultural departments, Shipping Board and railroads and by refunding of $170,000,000 of investments on account of the public debt.

Chairman Fordney said his committee probably could have the new revenue bill ready for consideration by the conference of House Republicans next Monday and leaders generally expect the measure probably could be passed by the House by August 5, permitting Congress to recess on that date for a month.

The great bulk of the taxes which it proposed to repeal would come out of last January 1, these being the excess profits tax, estimated at $1,000,000, and the income surtax rates above 32 per cent., which are estimated to yield $200,000,000. For this year the income tax will be reduced to 25 per cent., giving a further revenue loss next year.

Thirsty Motorists Lament Maine's Vegetable Law

Kittery, Me., Aug. 10.—Great is the lamentation here among motorists who like to take a wee nip along when they go for an automobile trip into the country.

Officials at the Kittery toll bridge, on the main road, west of town, have orders to search all vehicles for vegetables, on which a toll-tax is imposed. The motorists don't mind that so much. But several times this week, when the law's minions delved into a back seat for vegetables they discovered contraband liquor.

Several arrests for illegal transportation of intoxicating liquor have resulted. Motorists are urging the repeal of the toll-gate law.

ELOPERS NOW ON HONEYMOON IN 'DAD'S' CAR

Helene Sweney of Winthrop Wires Thanks to Father After Marriage to Jensen

"Thanks Daddy for the car," Helene, the eighteen-year-old daughter of Charles H. Sweney of No. 12 Sewall avenue, Winthrop Highlands, wired after her elopement with A. Carl Jensen to Springfield.

Today "Daddy's" car is carrying the happy young couple through New York State on the first lap of their honeymoon.

And the father and mother of the bride, who is Helene L. Sweney, well known Boston dancing teacher, are glad of their daughter's happiness, have wired their forgiveness and blessing and are preparing to receive the young couple into their home when they return.

Mrs. Sweney even has some dainty garments for the trousseau, bought in New York almost at the very hour her daughter was being married.

The wedding of Helene and Carl Jensen was not unexpected. In fact their engagement was formally announced last Christmas and the ceremony was to take place some time this Fall.

The bridegroom is twenty-two years old and a student in Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He will complete his course in industrial engineering next June.

Helene M. Sweney of Winthrop Highlands, who took her father's automobile and eloped in the machine with A. Carl Jensen of Natick, a student at the Institute of Technology. The couple were married in Springfield, were wired forgiveness and are now on a honeymoon trip through New York, still in possession of the auto belonging to the bride's father.

Poslam

nothing better for pimples

The sensitive skin of a young girl or boy! How every little disturbance—even that extra exercise aids—hasits immediate effect in the form of a crop of pimples. But the tender skin should respond just as quickly to a touch of Poslam applied at bedtime or occasionally during the day.

Its persistent use, with good thorough cleansing with Poslam Soap, should keep the skin in a condition of which any girl may well be proud. Not only the "web-cloth" but her big sister as well can profit by this treatment.

The bride is a graduate of the Lexington High School and Sargent School, Cambridge, and during the war taught at the Harvard Medical Course for Reconstruction Aides.

BURNED TROUSSEAU MAY DELAY WEDDING

Haverhill, Aug. 10.—Fire that caused $3,500 damage to the home of James J. Rooney of Adams street, and destroyed the $1,000 trousseau of Miss Nellie Rooney, probably will cause the postponement of her wedding to Russell Cleary of East Braintree until another trousseau can be prepared.

Miss Rooney was to have been married next week.

The fire is believed to have been caused by defective wiring.

CONNOLLY TELLS OF SLAYING OF AGED WIDOW

71-Year-Old Woman Walking by Roadside Laid Low by Black and Tan Volley

TORTURED IRELAND

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY.

Famous New England Author and Journalist.

"Making a living? You are lucky to be living yourself!" So spoke the brave commander of the British forces. And issued his orders. The Crown men scooped the fish up off the stone flagging and the farm produce out of the baskets, and loaded them into a commandeered cart and paraded with stern and solid front up to the barracks, where a higher officer inspected and approved the capture, and possibly helped himself to what he liked of the lot.

THROWN IN HARBOR.

From the Barracks the parade was resumed through the streets of the town, and onto the little bridge across the river and there the Crown men—Black and Tans and soldiers—threw the stock of the old women into the clear green waters of the harbor.

They were marching solidly off again when a trusty spy brought word that one old woman had been holding out. In her cabin were yet several heads of cabbage.

"The deceitful Irish beldame!" She would be taught a lesson. The solid column marched on to the cabin, and truly enough there they were, a whole half dozen big head of cabbage—whole half dozen heads of cabbage were taken into custody, and once more the solid column took up the line of march to the little bridge and once more were the clear green waters of the harbor disturbed by this fresh capture from a rebellious populace.

It was a splendid feat of arms, but this people of Dungarvan were not to see the end of English military bravery for that day. Just outside the town lived Mary Foley—a 71 year old widow. The English military did not war on women. Surely they don't! and never did. No.

Old Mrs. Foley was well known in the town, where she came regularly with little loads of farm produce for sale. She was an alert, industrious, old lady, who kept house for a married son and daughter, both of whom in the hard times had to go out and work to keep the half dozen children in a living and a schooling.

71-YEAR OLD WIDOW SLAIN.

This particular afternoon—the afternoon of the episode of the captured fish—old Mrs. Foley was out picking firewood. She had two of her grandchildren with her, a boy of nine and a girl younger, and she was in a field near the edge of a wood where many a dry stick might be had for the picking up, and the neat being 6 shillings a ton a good stick of dry wood was a great help.

She was bending down near a gate which opened out of one end of the field toward the woods when she heard a shot and the whistle of a bullet passing close by. She looked around and saw the scrouching soldiers making in her direction.

"Lie down, children, lie down!" whispered Mrs. Foley, at the same time standing straight up herself and throwing up her hands.

The old woman's arms were still above her head when from the advancing soldiery came a volley of bullets. Down she sank, with a sob of wonder as to why they should shoot her, a poor old woman. Every new innocent victim sinks down with that same word of wonder. One by one they have to learn.

They had put three bullets into Mrs. Foley's poor old body. She lived in agony for three hours; before she died she told the story of the shooting.

NO SHOOTING BACK.

The Dublin Castle official report of her death occupied a very thin paragraph. Nobody was to blame. The soldiery "mistook" her for a man.

And why the shooting even if it was a man? No answer. Always no answer.

"Some of these barracks men, it seems to me, would as soon shoot an old woman as an I. R. A. man? I said to a woman of Dungarvan after I heard the story of Mrs. Foley.

"As soon? Sooner. No danger of a poor, old woman having a shot back at them."

They tell of the Black and Tans over there who notch their revolver buts for every new killing. Old Mrs. Foley having three bullets in her body doubtless had an argument over the credit for her.

There were also some boys shot near Dungarvan. One boy hearing a lorry coming along the road, started to run; then reflecting that they would surely shoot him if they saw him running away, he turned and came back toward the road.

They shot him any way. Another "mistake." They thought he was running from, and not toward, them.

Keeps Hair In Curl On Hot or Windy Days

Here's a hair curling secret I've decidedly "worth while." Just apply a little liquid silmerine before doing up the hair using a clean tooth brush for the purpose, drawing this down the hair from crown to tip. In three hours you will have as beautiful curls and waves as you could wish for. The curliness will look so natural no one will guess it was artificially acquired, and it will last ever so long, regardless of heat, wind or dampness.

You can obtain liquid silmerine at any drug store and a few ounces will last a long time. It is neither sticky nor greasy and is pleasant to use. It is doubly useful because it also serves as a beneficial dressing, keeping the hair soft, silky and lustrous.—Advertisement.

TENEAN BEACH GIRLS KEEN FOR RACE

Hope to Emulate Winner of Past Boston American Swimming Events

Tenean Beach, in the Pope's Hill section of Dorchester, will be represented by a bevy of beautiful girls in the big race of one and one-half miles and 200 feet to be run by the Boston American in the Charles River Basin, Saturday afternoon, August 27. It was at this resort that a wimsol of past races contracted by the Boston American trained.

Keen rivalry exists between Tenean and Savin Hill beach mermaids, and time and again girls from these resorts, which are a short distance apart, have fought it out in practice for supremacy. Girls from both beaches are now among the entrants for the Boston American race and promise to show speed and class.

But the Tenean and Savin Hill girls will have to go some. It is stated, to outdistance nymphs from Cambridge and Somerville beaches. If records are any criterion. One Somerville girl swimmer says she will make the Tenean champ look like a zero with the ring removed the day of the great race.

MUST FILL OUT BLANK.

Remember, girls, it is absolutely necessary to fill out the blank elsewhere on this page to be enrolled as a contestant in the race.

It costs nothing to do this. The Boston American does not believe in taxing a girl to enter a race. When you fill out the blank mail it to the Swimming Editor, Boston American, No. 89 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

All contestants are invited to view the prizes to be awarded winners in the race, which now are on exhibition in the Belgrade street office of the Boston Daily and Sunday Advertiser in the Little Building. Watch the pictorial page for photos of swimming girls.

A. F. OF L. SEEKS UNIFORM LAWS FOR UNIONS

State Branch Gets Resolution. Janitors Object to Suites Below Ground Level

By Associated Press.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 10.—An effort to line up Massachusetts with other parts of the country in the movement to obtain uniform legislation pertaining to labor unions was made in today's session of the State branch of the American Federation of Labor when a resolution was introduced directing it with one that has the support of national officers of the federation. Action was postponed to allow obtaining enough copies for general examination by the delegates.

Two resolutions sponsored by the apartment house janitors of Boston were passed. One calls for the licensing of apartment house janitors and the other would prohibit the use of suites below the ground level.

Steamer North Land Delayed by Break In Steering Gear

The steamer North Land of the Eastern Steamship Company, from New York with 350 passengers, was delayed one hour today by an accident to her steering gear in the lower harbor, off Deer Island light.

By Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—Shop men on the Pennsylvania Railroad will not strike to force the company to comply with the order of the United States Railroad Labor Board to meet with their union employes and draw up a new schedule of working agreements.

The last threat of a strike always voiced when W. S. Jeffry, chairman of the advisory board of the shop craft unions of the Philadelphia district, announced the unions would rely on American patriotism and public sentiment to force the road to obey the transportation act.

Ivan the Jap Killer

Frazier Hunt turns up this month in Siberia, with the startling true story of Ivan, the fourteen-year-old veteran, whose entire family was slain by the Japanese, and who, in vengeance, has himself killed ten of the invading Japanese soldiers.

"He was only a kid, a fourteen-year-old kid who should have been in school—had there been any school for him. For days I'd heard tales of this firebrand of a boy who had sworn to die fighting the Japanese. Finally I reached the Partizan detachment he had joined and his comrades in arms brought him around to me."

"LILIOM"

The "Play of the Month," for August. The great Budapest sensation, by Franz Molnar, which follows the "barker" for Madam Muskat's carousel through his wicked, sordid, earthly romance—and then to the gates of Heaven, whence he is sent for a long, purifying period to Hell; finally to return to earth to do just one good deed, as the price of admission to Heaven.

"He eats our bread and soup," his wife complains to their daughter, born after his death, "and has the impudence to slander our dead!"

A brilliant collection of international topics in Hearst's International

IN the rapid development of its International policy, HEARST'S INTERNATIONAL comes forward with a striking section, "THE WORLD TODAY," a most unusual collection of absorbingly interesting newsbits which either find no place in the daily press, or are smothered in a mass of less interesting detail.

"America's New Prosperity and Foreign Trade," by Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guarantee Trust Company, will prove of tremendous interest to those whose eyes are bent overseas—supplemented by such topics as "Money Talks in Mexico," "Will India Free Britain," "What Has Russia to Sell?" and "An All-American League."

Those returning from Europe appreciate fully that America's greatest need and opportunity is to understand the true difficulties and real accomplishments of Europe's hardened nations. The editor of HEARST'S INTERNATIONAL has shown in this August number how really interesting these vital matters can be made.

THREE ARRESTS IN NORTH END LIQUOR THEFT

A thrilling chase by the police that ended only when a fleeing automobile crashed into a curbing resulted in the arrest of three men today and the recovery of a large quantity of contraband liquor in an alley off Union street.

The liquor was stolen from the drug store of O. S. Cheney Co., No. 12 Union street, and the authorities are holding Thomas B. Hoia of No. 800 Broadway, Revere, as well as two other men as suspicious persons.

A search has also been instituted for two men who are believed to have been the "master minds" of a gang of liquor stealers, believed to have been at the same store a week ago.

Investigation revealed the fact that the door of the Cheney store was open, and 250 pints of whiskey, with a five-gallon keg of port wine, were piled in just outside.

According to the police the liquor was stolen from the drug store, which was entered by means of false keys.

HAPGOOD LAUDS HUGHES POLICY IN MEXICO

Question of Compromise Now Up to Obregon, Writer Says

By NORMAN HAPGOOD
Staff Correspondent of the Boston American

Washington, Aug. 10.—One of the most creditable exploits of Secretary Hughes is the working out of a Mexican policy which arouses general respect.

It was not an easy situation to which even to formulate a theory, to say nothing of carrying a theory out. The only people who could talk lucidly about what they wanted were those who simplified the problem down to the convenience of investigators.

When the responsibility fell on President Wilson he was convinced that Huerta and the overthrow of Madero represented the progressive part of the Mexican people, but only a handful of men with foreign backing.

Therefore he refused recognition, and turned along the various insurgent elements, until the Carranza regime finally developed. During this part of Mr. Wilson's first term I asked him if his various problems worried him.

"None except Mexico," he said. "That worries me because I do not understand it."

WILSON SOUGHT FACTS.

By understanding he referred not to principles of psychology but to facts. He meant that he had not been able to get hold of enough facts.

Later on I took to the White House a man who was keenly interested in Mexico.

"All sorts of people come to tell me things about Mexico," said the President. "One is interested in one aspect, one in another. The only thing in which none of them seem interested is the ordinary Mexican."

As an enthusiastic backer of Mr. Wilson's Mexican policy I explained it once to Lord Bryce. "That is all very well," said he, "but do not forget that at a certain stage of development the inhabitant of a country gains more progress and welfare from one railroad or mine than from any political machinery."

Attempts at political consistency often lead to confusion. I have always felt that the too moral grounds on which we based the refusal to recognize Huerta were used with disastrous results in influence by analogy our Russian policy.

A distinction between Lenin and Huerta on de facto grounds was perfectly possible, but when he relied too strongly on moral objections to a difficult coup we were in trouble with our analogies.

When the Republicans came in it looked as if they would seek every pretext for intervention. The platform, Senator Lodge's Chicago speech, and the full report were confident expressions of what looked like a prevailing party spirit.

HARDING DIFFERED WITH FALL.

President Harding, however, in the time that intervened between election and taking office, made it clear in his conversation that Senator Fall was a great friend of his their ideas of Mexico were not alike.

The Senator wanted to be secretary of State. When Mr. Hughes was chosen it was believed by many that never-heless the Mexican policy would be the policy of Mr. Fall. The point of view of the officials in the State department, from Mr. Lansing down, had been persistently against Mr. Wilson, and he had had to watch them constantly to prevent their seeking occasions of trouble.

Indeed, when Mr. Wilson chose an irrational, a protest as Cabinet meetings for letting Mr. Lansing go, one of the two actual reasons was the secretary's failure to uphold the President's Mexican policy.

In all those complications Mr. Hughes worked out and insisted upon a policy. He took the position that our government would not recognize a Mexican government that retroactively took away private property. At the same time he made it clear that if the retroactive clause was changed or officially interpreted so as not to be retroactive our administration would recognize the Obregon regime and not interfere with any measures, no matter how socialistic, that looked only to the future.

OBREGON DOUBTFUL.

As he intended to oppose the Lenin regime in Russia on property grounds, this left him at least consistent. Whether it left him profoundly right or not is another matter, but there is a fair chance of success. We are freed of any suspicion, in fair minds, of seeking subterfuges for interference, and it is left up to Obregon to bring about a simple and easily understood compromise.

The trouble is that he does not believe in the good faith and friendliness of the administration. In that he is wrong. As long as Mr. Hughes is Secretary of State there will be no cheating.

WOMAN TO SIT IN DISARMAMENT MEET

Washington, Aug. 10.—According to present tentative plans of the administration the American delegation which will sit in the conference on disarmament in Washington next November will be composed of not more than five or six persons and it is probable that there will a woman member of the delegation. This plan is yet wholly tentative and subject to such modification as developments between now and November 11 may make desirable.

CARGO IS REMOVED FROM LADY OF GASPE

Halifax, Aug. 10.—The steamship Lady of Gaspe is still hard and fast on Thrum Cap shoals where she struck Monday night and she will probably be a total loss. A heavy swell is running and seas are breaking over her. A small tug got alongside her leeward side and took off some cargo, including an auto which was on deck; large boats cannot get near her. The ship seems to be well settled on the ledge and is pounding a little.

NAPHTHA WELLS AFLAME ON OUTSKIRTS OF BAKU

Copenhagen, Aug. 10. — Riches naphtha wells are aflame on the outskirts of Baku, in the heart of the rich Caucasus oil fields, and the inhabitants of the neighboring villages are in flight, fearing a general conflagration, according to advices from Moscow today. The burning of the wells in the Baku district will intensify the winter fuel shortage in southeastern Russia.

Lawn Fete at St. John's, Beverly Farms, Tomorrow

Miss Alice Thorndike of Marlboro street and Beverly Farms is a member of the committee in charge of the lawn fete which takes place tomorrow on the grounds of St. John's Episcopal Church, Beverly Farms. The fair is being given to help swell the building fund of St. John's parish house.

By BETTY ALDEN

The fashionables along the North Shore will flock tomorrow to the grounds of St. John's Episcopal Church, Beverly Farms, to patronize the lawn fete for the benefit of the building fund of the church's parish house. The outdoor sale is being given by the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's with the aid of the Girls' Club of the church. As many of the most prominent members of the Summer colony all along the North Shore attend this house of worship, both the Women's Auxiliary and the Girls' Club are composed of matrons and maids whose names are well-known along the shore and in town.

The committee in charge of the fair includes Mrs. John L. Thorndike, Miss Alice Thorndike, Mrs. Alvin Sortwell, Mrs. Nathaniel Simpkins, Jr. (Olivia Thorndike), Mrs. Edward Campbell and Mrs. Stephen Hutchinson.

The grounds surrounding the picturesque little church and parish house will be gayly decorated and two large marquees are being erected for the occasion. The Women's Auxiliary and the Girls' Club each have a charming room in the parish house, which is being extensively remodelled. The Women's Auxiliary has furnished its meeting room entirely in blue and white, with chairs, rugs, curtains and gay chints pillows, all carrying out the color scheme.

Briarcliff Lodge in the Westchester Hills, overlooking the Hudson, recently harbored a number of Boston society folk, including the Misses Eleonora and Mary F. Snelling of Dedham and Mr. Benjamin Ives Gilman of No. 22 River street. The Misses Snelling were accompanied by Mrs. Frederick A. Packard and Mr. John Rodman Paul of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Stanley Whipple, assisted by Mrs. Howard Key Bartow and Mrs. Edward W. Kinsley, is in charge of the costume dance which takes place tonight in the Cohasset Town Hall for the benefit of the Sunlight Repair Shop at North Scituate. The number of attendants at this evening's affair will be unusually large, as the charity object has proved to be one of the most popular along the South Shore among summering society matrons. Children convalescing from infantile paralysis are given the benefits of expert medical care at the "Sunlight" shop, where wholesome food and fresh air abound. Dr. Lowe, who is at the head of the institution, is receiving the support of the surrounding towns and it is hoped that sufficient funds may be raised to keep the hospital open the entire year.

I note that quite a number of Bostonians summering at Lenox, Mass., have been active in the round of social affairs centering about the meeting of the Institute of Politics. Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Sedgwick of No. 14 Walnut street, and Viscount James Bryce and Lady Bryce were the guests of Mrs. John Stewart McClennan in Tyringham. A tea and musicale was given in their honor by Mrs. McClennan, and among the guests were J. Herman Van Roijen, minister from the Netherlands to Rome, with Mrs. Van Roijen. Mr. and Mrs. Bentley Wirt Warren, of No. 185 Beacon street, were the guests of President Harry G. Garfield of Williams College and Mrs. Garfield at a luncheon party held at the Garfield home in Williamstown.

A large meeting of the Lenox Garden Club was held at "Tanglewood," the Summer estate of Mrs. Richard C. Dixey and Miss Mary Ashley Tappan, of No. 14 Beacon street, Pittsfield, Tuesday morning, at which Professor John MacFarlane of the University of Pennsylvania was the speaker. Tea was served on the wide verandas of the estate.

Although the exact date for the wedding of Miss Julia Estelle French and Howard T. Williams of this city is still unsettled, reports are current that the nuptial will be either on August 16 or 17. The wedding is to take place at "Nanle Shade" the Newport home of Mrs. Stuyvesant Leroy on Red Cross avenue.

THIS TENANT PUT ONE OVER ON LANDLORD

Lease at $35 Can Be Terminated Only By Mutual Consent

It is not often that a landlord gets the worst of a lease of an apartment to a tenant, says Herbert A. Ellis, adjuster for the Rent and Housing Commission, but one instance came to his attention that impelled him to advise the tenant to cling to his lease and not agree to any proposed changes.

The lease was drawn by the landlord and tenant in collaboration and fixed the monthly rental at $35, following which is a clause which reads:

"This agreement to remain in force until cancelled by mutual consent of both parties."

Today the landlord notified Mr. Ellis that the tenant not only refused to agree to pay $5 a month more but said he intended to remain in the apartment as long as he liked.

The adjuster told the landlord it looked like a lease in perpetuity, in force so long as the tenant paid the rent and did not damage the property. And when the tenant called Mr. Ellis told him that if he had such a lease, he would cherish it carefully.

In the case of a landlord and house hunter who called upon the adjuster to have him referee a lease he submitted the home seeker not to sign, and suggested to the landlord that he "have a heart" and modify some of the terms.

One of these proposed that "no child or children shall use the front door, front entries or front stairways and that no baby carriages shall be allowed in the front entries."

In another clause the tenant agreed to leave after ten days' notice and in another to hoist all furniture through the windows.

The adjuster told the landlord that the clause relative to the activities of children had a tendency to promote race suicide and also raised the question as to when a child is not a child.

If enforced it might cause parents to postpone the coming out parties of daughters usually held when the girl reaches the mature age of sixteen, and possibly result in doing away entirely with the important formal function of "coming out" in many instances. That, he told the landlord, would be imposing a penalty upon the girls of the rising generation and tend to destroy a grand old American custom.

The landlord was duly impressed and agreed to eliminate the objectionable features.

NEWSDEALERS' ANNUAL OUTING AT PLYMOUTH

Big Program of Fun and Music for Gala Day in Pilgrim Town

Today was the big day for Boston news dealers.

It was the date of their annual outing, which this year was held in Plymouth, where Myles Standish and the other Mayflower Puritans landed quite a few years ago.

The news dealers—who, by the way, call themselves the Suburban News Dealers' Association—gathered at Rowes wharf at 10 o'clock and went by boat to the Pilgrim town.

Everyone was expected to provide himself or herself with a basket lunch, as the crowded condition of the Plymouth hotels and restaurants makes it difficult for large crowds to be served in a hurry.

A program of fun and music was arranged by the arrangement committee. "Brookline Hills" and "Wakefield Mac" were two prominent figures on the list of entertainers.

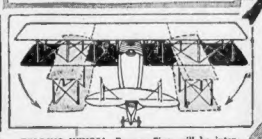
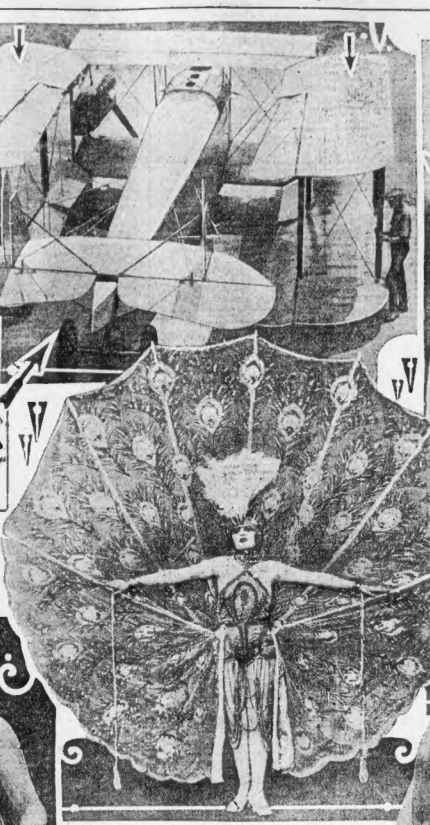
WE ARE still "at war" with Germany, who has long since returned to its peaceful pursuits and sports. Bicycle riding was a feature of the recent Berlin carnival. (W. W.)

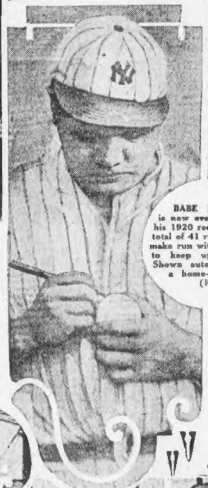


FOLDING WINGS! Farmer fliers will be interested, but skeptical, to learn that the outstanding feature of this plane is its folding wings, the invention of G. Edward Bernhardt. Made successful trial flight over Los Angeles. Folding wings permit the machine to be buckled back so that it can be drawn over rough roads. Diagram shows how the wings look normal and folded. (U. & U.)



ZIPP! Norma Talmadge, including her famous bobbed hair, has taken up golf as a fad, and she does use that ball awful mean, say the experts. Daily she graces the links at Bayside, L. I. Snapped just after a smart drive. How do you like her with bobbed hair? (Int.)

DOWN FOR COUNT! Frank P. Spellman, right, is the only man who ever floored Dempsey four times. He has won movie case five times against fighter in Supreme Court. (K.)



BABE RUTH is now even with his 1920 record. His total of 41 runs. Must make run within 5 days to keep up record. Shown autographing a home-run ball. (K.)

THINK OF IT, MY DEAR! You are now gazing on the sinuous figure and comely face of La Belle Dorienne, leading lady at the Casino de Paris, the most proposed to woman in Europe. Why, Tessie, on Bastille Day alone she turned down eleven proposals. (K. & H.)

OUT! Miss Madge Merritt (right), one of the classy players on the Brighton Beach nines, says that the bathing suit is ideal for a snappy game. (Int.)

BURGLARS stole $4,000 in bric-a-brac and jewelry from the New York home of Cleo Mayfield and Cecil Lean. They are dreadfully "put out" about it.

LION HEARTED! Zipping along through the well-known other at 106 miles per hour, or thereabouts, became so monotonous for Mark M. Campbell that he bought a playful little lion to keep him company on his trips about New York. If he drives too rapidly or bumps the old bus too steeply, brother lion just naturally tears things up a bit. But that's where Campbell gets his thrill now. He's only a cub, this lion, but he could just about ruin an ordinary human if he ever got that idea into his fool head. (U. & U.)

WESTERN STUFF! Martha Scherler of Midan, Switzerland, loves American and wants a cowboy husband. Have you a little cowboy in your home? Watch out for Martha, 'cause she'll steal him. (U. & U.)

LIFE BUOYS, AHOY! This wreck isn't as serious as it looks, at least for the passengers. The Athlon, a passenger liner, crashed into the rocks at Port Ludlow, Puget Sound, Washington, during a fog and the lives of scores of passengers were endangered. They were finally carried to safety, as the shore was only 1,000 yards away. The boat itself has been given up as a total loss. She is entirely out of water at low tide, resting at a sharp angle. (Int.)

HARGOOD LAUDS HUGHES POLICY IN MEXICO

Question of Compromise Now Up to Obregon, Writer Says

By NORMAN HAPGOOD
Staff Correspondent of the Boston American

Washington, Aug. 10.—One of the most confidential exhibits of Secretary Hughes in the matter of out of a Mexican policy which arouses general interest.

It was not an easy matter to which even to formulate a theory to say nothing of carrying a theory into effect. Those who simplified the problem down to the convenience of investigators.

When the responsibility fell on President Wilson he was convinced that Huerta and the overthrow of Madero presented no applicable part of Mexican history. Only a few of men with foreign backing.

Therefore he refused recognition and stood strongly for the Mexican constitutionalists in their struggle to overthrow Huerta. Wilson sought facts.

She has also one criterion in matrimonial experience, and when her worldly wise head tells high society has admirers by the score. FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

"Give me facts, facts, facts."

That is the insistent demand of such successful business upbuilders as George Eastman, James A. Patrell, Robert Dollar, Coleman Du Pont, Walter C. Teagle, Charles A. Stone, Thomas A. Edison, Eugene G. Grace, Edward L. Doheny, Louis F. Swift, John G. Shedd, Charles E. Mitchell, John H. Patterson, Harry B. Thayer, Thomas E. Wilson, Cyrus H. K. Curtis, William Boyce Thompson and other notables on the part of merchants, manufacturers and others regarding their costs—the cost of production, the cost of distribution, the cost of overhead in relation to various departments and products, and so forth. Said Vice President Edward N. Hurley:

"It is alarming to find how many business men do business blindly and trust to luck to bring them a fair profit at the end of the year."

* * *

What Chairman Hurley and the Federal Trade Commission strongly urged was the employment of expert accountants, particularly experts on cost accounting. But the ordinary business man knew nothing of what services a public accountant could render him. The profession—a relatively new one—hadn't made much of an impression on the public mind at that time.

* * *

Realizing the need of making possible the widespread adoption of the extremely sensible recommendations of the trade commission, certain progressive firms of accountants began to spread enlightenment on what the right kind of accountancy could do for business concerns. Some firms had systems of cost audit in high-grade advertising agencies to prepare their announcements and advertising thus expertly handled was so illuminating and so convincing that an enormous number of new clients were attracted — converts to the value of having their accounts independently checked up and, where necessary, improved systems of account keeping and cost recording installed.

* * *

But now a very strange thing has happened.

The fat has gone forth that this educational work and experience gained to acquaint the business world with the value of the services accountants can render must be stopped.

Accountants must cease advertising of every nature whatsoever.

* * *

This extraordinary decision has been reached by the three gentlemen constituting a committee of the American Institute of Accountants who hope to have their decision endorsed at the forthcoming annual meeting of the institute. These gentlemen have allowed the only sustaining influence the market now has to emanate from some of the biggest, the most weird and wonderful effusions that ever came from the brains of supposedly intelligent men. Read these extracts:

"The announcement that Smith, Jones & Robinson have opened a new office under the management of John Doe would in itself be innocuous, but if accompanying such a card of announcement there is a list of the firm's offices in all the principal cities of the United States it becomes doubtful whether the announcement is intended to emphasize the magnitude of the firm's operations or to announce the opening of an office."

Could anything be more heinous than the publishing of the list of places where a concern maintains offices? It took three eagle-eyed accountants to detect the criminality of such procedure!

* * *

Have you ever been guilty of sending anyone a Christmas card? Shame on you. How could you do anything so lacking in dignity? Or of announcements is pilloried by this Argus-eyed committee of three for sending its clients this holiday greeting:

"To close our books at the end of the year without expressing our appreciation for the business you have entrusted to us would leave a debt unpaid. We thank you and extend the best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy, Prosperous New Year."

* * *

The lynx-eyed three reach the climax of their logic in these words:

"It is generally admitted by all members of the Institute that accountancy is a profession. Self-praise is unprofessional.

"All advertising must be characterized by a certain amount of self-praise.

"Therefore, all advertising is unprofessional and accountants should abstain from it."

* * *

Americans will be glad to know that this childish diatribe can be laid at the door of England rather than America, as one of the committeemen is British-born, and another is identified with the well-established British firm of accountants. Twentieth-century Americans have too much horse-sense to propose a step backwards toward darkness.

* * *

If this committee of three's old notions are not squelched by American accountants at their coming conventions, the next step will be the recommendation to all concerns calling in accountants that they cease advertising. These three gentlemen is the profoundness of their wisdom concerning advertising, set it down that "advertising does not pay." Are circulars permissible? "Circulars

Stocks Weak in Both Markets; Call Rate 6%; Sterling Exchange Steady

LEADERS DOWN IN NEW YORK TRADING

Most Issues Lower at Opening; Steels, Oils, Rails and Equipments Sell Lower

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at the opening prices today in all departments. Bosch Magneto sold at a record low in the second hour and Western Union was at its year's lowest. Steels, rails, oils and equipments had a sagging tendency from the start and there were fair to large initial losses.

Among weakest stocks were Mexican Petroleum, Pan-American, Royal Dutch, Western Union, Sears Roebuck, Studebaker, Reading, New Haven, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Car and Foundry, American Locomotive, Baldwin, Corn Products, General Asphalt and Texas Gulf Sulphur.

Trading was more active, morning transactions exceeding 700,000 shares. Call loans renewed at 6 percent. Sterling exchange was steady, demand bills being unchanged at 4.65½.

HEAVY TONE AT OPENING.

Most price changes at the opening were losses, and the trend continued downward during the first hour and into the second. But fractional gains in small and trading lacked breadth. It was a little more active on Tuesday, this led the decline, with Mexican Petroleum the weakest of them all. It again sold below par. Rails and steels yielded to shrinkages, and motors were irregular. But there was increased selling of equipments after a drop and Cuba Cane preferred showed the largest morning loss of any stock in this class. General Electric was something of a feature, being dealt in on a large scale than usual and selling at its lowest in nine years. Studebaker and Mexican Petroleum were subjected to the most selling pressure. Atlantic Gulf reported a decline at Havana and it was down a point later. But a larger decline might have been expected considering its poor statement as to the result of 1920 operations. There was no material demand for bonds at midday.

LITTLE BORROWING DEMAND.

The borrowing demand for stocks decreased yesterday and today, which left a surplus. United Fruit was among them. American Sugar and Crucible issued flat. The preference of the public to the stock market is generally accepted as an advance would be likely to induce some outside buying, but financial interests now are calculating at low level and no intention of bidding up prices. Only professional trading and that on a small scale, is expected by the Wall Street contingent during the remainder of this month and well into September. A high call rate usually responds to a period of speculation. The government must go from the banks for the distribution of the month, when tax payments are due also. Sentiment among traders is that gentlemen have allowed the only sustaining influence the market now has to emanate from some of the biggest, the most weird and wonderful effusions that ever came from the brains of supposedly intelligent men. Read these extracts:

"The announcement that Smith, Jones & Robinson have opened a new office under the management of John Doe would in itself be innocuous, but if accompanying such a card of announcement there is a list of the firm's offices in all the principal cities of the United States it becomes doubtful whether the announcement is intended to emphasize the magnitude of the firm's operations or to announce the opening of an office."

New York, Aug. 10.—Support from cloud houses and New Orleans and Liverpool interests was sufficient with firm cables from Liverpool to advance prices 8 to 12 points at the opening of the cotton market today. Most of the offerings came from Japanese, local traders and southern wire concerns, but they were absorbed so well that the list held the full gain after the start and at the end of the first hour prices were about 10 points above the previous close. TAKES TIME TO TURN BUSINESS AROUND

Evans Points Out How Wrong It Is to Take "Sure Tips" on Today's Market

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—A distinguished banker in New York, who for many months has been telling people to buy, and through whose leadings much stock has been distributed at higher prices than those now prevailing, has now changed his opinion a key, even going so far as to warn traders of a possible breakdown before the end of September. Many in this city a number of people have parted with their stocks.

Rather late in the day, my boy, unless you refer to a very trainless phase. The stock ticker thumps a whisper ominously nearly two years ago and those who set up the bearish stateside utterances are in a poor position to admonish others at the present time.

NOW IN TWILIGHT.

So far as the security market is concerned, the picture now is painted by the artists in that line are merely the afterglow of many multi-million dollar mural that set the past year or two. But night does not follow the setting of that kind of a sun, but only a rather protracted twilight in that light that we are now sitting.

If you turn back to the boom times of 1919, when the traders saw no light to volume or profit, you will see that several issues at the bluest not half that the borrowers wanted. Any trained business man with his nose in the financial pages of Chicago Stock Yards or observing the lambe disporting themselves on the slopes of Montana knew what was happening and what was going to happen unless through his warfare or ambition he had acquired the merchandising grace of that thing.

BANKERS WERE DISTRESSED.

The bankers in the cool of their parlors, knew still better, for they knew that the size of paper which signified what was going on and they were distressed because they knew more than the traders had to buck, also because they did not like to keep saying no to applicants for more loans.

The country has never gotten over that situation, only part way over, and is going on to completion of the job. The total assets of the president of this city says it will be necessary to refinance the bank of issues. Open refinancing has not been sufficient and there will have to be a second, maybe a third, though before that comes along some of the unfortunate ones will have retired from business.

Many of the loans of months ago were profitable for the banks, and the ability of recovery in business, but the barometer is now falling since. A great grain house in Omaha is probably an example of things to the banks for the bankers of course do not tell unless the weakness is divulged from other sources.

MEANS LIQUIDATION.

The word "must" has been pasted all over the business affairs of the United States from many months and it means liquidation. The process is a good cause it is necessary.

It may not be pleasant to climb down a rugged mountainside, tearing your trousers and your flesh, but it is better to go down than to wait for the angry bear behind you, and those who cuss you have been teasing. At this stage of affairs there is no prediction it is not worth while to pay too much attention to rumors, for we may be quite sure that there is no danger ahead of us so great as those we have already passed through. Therefore if one who has been saying buy for many months past throws a bucket of water to the alarming pan of your own reason, gather your courage and remember that it is better to buy now than to have bought when told to do so a year ago.

BETTER TIMES COMING.

It is well for Banker Strong of New York to speak hopefully of the business outlook, for he is not speaking for himself alone, but for the people to conservative persons. There may be many more days of fear in the markets, a long wait for better things, but they will come.

The sun always plays for the ground floor of things never achieves his purpose. Nothing has ever seen to show that business is trying to turn around.

But did you ever notice what a large percentage has to turn around before business is turned through.

Some people seem to think that the United States is sinking but a whirlpool.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Tuesday's stock market failed to develop anything more than the drifting tendency that has become more or less of an established custom of late. In the first hour, although dullness prevailed, it looked as if the rails were trying hard to respond to the favorable reports on June and July earnings and the indications for July business movement later in the season. All the standard shares displayed firmness, although the volume of transactions was limited. The market soon lapsed into its usual apathetic mood and followed later by a professional selling movement. In the last hour of the morning gains were cancelled and turned into losses. The low-priced rails suffered relatively the most under this pressing. Industrials again showed uncertainty and lack of specific initiative. Even the excellent statement of American Locomotive failed to induce more than passing enthusiasm. Doubt, or rather unsettlement, over dividend action caused renewed pressure in American Sugar, Baldwin, Studebaker, American Petroleum and U. S. Rubber were weak.

TUESDAY'S developments in foreign exchange market which were featured by a sudden upward turn tends to support the theory that Monday's sharp break in sterling owed its impulse largely to short covering. The suggestion that Germany was behind the drive in sterling in the purchase of sterling in connection with current reparations payments therefore appears to be merely one of the plausible explanations advanced in the absence of accurate knowledge of the facts.

THE bait, the advance in the railroad stocks and some of the equipments which came in for buying was accepted then by the trading element either as a period of rest for these issues which had been most active, or as the beginning of a broad distribution. Had the industrials, which were laggard during the advance in the rails been taken in hand by the speculative groups and given advanced proportionately, the advocates of higher prices would seemingly have been vindicated. Instead of that there was persistent liquidation in evidence in such stocks as General Electric, Baldwin and other high-grade issues which liquidation still continues and a responsible for the feeling that no sustained advance, but, on the contrary, a decline may be in order.

THE excellent statement of American Locomotive failed to bring any new buying into that issue, but, on the contrary, brought a considerable amount of realizing from purchasers of a week ago. The stock was under persistent liquidation all day. After publication of the financial decline continued to yield until the close when the lowest price of the day was established.

BALDWIN LOCOMOTIVE, which has given every indication of distributing stock during the 20 points rise of a month ago, was especially weak during the early hour. Was in part due to account for the selling but reports were in circulation that orders contemplated accounts were being lightened. There was no evidence of substantial support during the decline, and, indeed this was the encouraging feature of the whole list.

THE selling of General Electric has been persistent for some weeks, and the same interests which have been active in disposing of the stock again were sellers Tuesday. There is no question of the maintenance of the present rate of dividend on the selling, but it is understood to be for account of persons desirous of obtaining needed funds.

FURTHER reductions in automobile prices were announced by C. H. Wills & Company, makers of the Sainte Claire cars, and by Columbia Motors. The former announces reductions of from $225 to $750, according to the model and the latter from $150 to $300 on its 1922 models. This was responsible for some of the selling which came into the market today.

WANTS INDUSTRY ON PRE-WAR BASIS

President of Italian Senate Denies Socialist Theories at Williamstown

Williamstown, Aug. 10.—The Socialist theory that capitalistic classes are constantly increasing in wealth at the expense of the poorer classes is "give the lie" by the economic life of people today, Tommasi Tittoni, president of the Italian Senate, declared today in his lecture before the Institute of Politics at Williams College.

President Tittoni outlined the history of the influence of the socialistic movement in Italy, where he said the number of state or city-owned industries had doubled within the past five years. On the basis of Italy's experience he criticized the theory of ownership sharply, and advocated a return to pre-war conditions in industry everywhere.

NEWS AND HAPPENINGS IN THE WORLD OF MOTION PICTURES

By FRIEDA DAVIS

HAVE you lost anyone? Watch the movies!

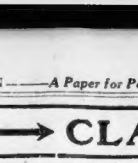
Robert Vignola, director for Cosmopolitan, received a strange request a short time ago from Mrs. Henriette Plate Jonson of Philadelphia, in which she asked him to locate her brother, Gustave A. Plate. Mrs. Jonson recognizes the movies. When she saw "The Passionate Pilgrim," the Cosmopolitan film directed by Vignola, she was certain she recognized her brother.

Immediately she wrote Vignola, asking him to find the man who played the role of the sheriff. The director himself played the role and he's quite a big name in Vignola. Meanwhile, since he is not the "double," he's trying to locate him.

Plate, known among his friends as Charlie, is forty years old, was five feet five inches in height and was dark. He has enough tattoo marks on him to get a job in a circus, according to Vignola's instructions, and speaks English, German and Spanish. If you find him, notify Mrs. "double" at the Cosmopolitan studios. He thinks it only fair that he march the man home himself!

REALART SPEEDING UP.

WITH the arrival of Constance Binney on the West coast, the return of Alice Brady to New York, and the imminent arrival of Mary Miles Minter from Europe, Realart is starting in earnest at the Realart studios.



Constance Binney

The Binney vacation is drawing to a close, and work is starting in earnest at the Realart studios. The latest is Miss Binney's first trip to the California film colony in several years. The studios out there give more scope for work and the exteriors of her next features will require the Western scenery. Mary Miles Minter, who will continue working out there as soon as she returns, while Mae Murray, Wanda Hawley and Bebe Daniels are already in the midst of stories.

Alice Brady will continue making pictures in New York, as she is appearing on Broadway in a stage production, "Drifting." "Drifting," incidentally, has already opened in Atlantic City. Bebe Daniels is working on "Spring Fever," while Wanda Hawley is filming "The Love Charm."

LILLIAN GISH DOES IT.

LILLIAN GISH comes to the fore to state that a movie heroine doesn't always confine her heroism to rehearsed scenes. As the result of saving a set at Griffith's Mamaroneck studio Miss Gish is walking about with her arm in a sling.

A French village built for taking scenes for "The Two Orphans" caught fire last week. The alarm was given and all hands, scurried from all the "town." Miss Gish, who weighs only eight pounds, dashed out and dragged a fifty-five pound can of gasoline, then two blocks to the burning set. She tore several of the mantles in her left wrist, while Mr. Griffith was burned about the neck and shoulders by burning film.

Alice Calhoun at Park

The Park Theatre has nothing very startling to offer this week. Alice Calhoun is the Vitagraph picture, "Closed Doors," a picture very hard to pull the story along, but fails. The fault, however, is not so much Miss Calhoun's as it is the lack of cooperation she gets from the rest of the cast, the director, the author and the continuity writer. Harry Browne, as the leading man, did a little better than the rest and seemed to try to help Miss Calhoun along.

The "Closed Doors" of the title refer to the question of forgiving an erring wife or husband and giving him, or her, another chance. The story, itself, doesn't bear this out to any extent. We gathered the moral from the titles, not from the pictures. The pictures deal with a man, who is engrossed in business, and his wife, who has nothing to do but be jealous of the business. She meets this other man" who turns out to be a thief. There is more or less of a mix-up, then the husband, who didn't understand that the "other man" was there merely to steal, is given a lazy bit of advice and the picture comes to an abrupt close just as the story is worked into something resembling a situation.

"Man Trackers," the Universal picture which balances the bill, is another Royal Mounted Police story in which the hero "gets his man." If true in a moving-picture in this country today who doesn't know what the slogan of the Royal Mounted is, then he goes to the pictures to sleep.

George Larkin and Josephine Hill play the leads in this film. He is a member of the force, while she is the daughter of the commandant, or whatever the chief is called. He has information about a name of law-breakers in Lethbridge and, instead of keeping his information secret from the chief until he's ready to mete out bit of evidence, he and needed what he probably did. Universal might have saved about 1,000 feet of perfectly good celluloid if it would have come out in the first place.

"Man Trackers" is another story of the "I'll get the director, though he did call in someone else to write the scenes. The titles of the scenes are quite worthwhile and make good settings for pictures for Summer release. As for the story, it's not far different from most of the Mounted tales. I've seen better—for instance, Marshall Neilan's "The River's End"—and on the other hand, I've seen worse.

MAKES VACATION A PAYING PROPOSITION.

FRANK MAYO is taking the first vacation he has had in several months. Having finished "The Shark Master" for Universal, and having fought real sharks under water for the sake of art, he feels that he deserves a rest.

Mayo's idea of a rest is a personal appearance tour through Mexico, where he has a large following. "Showing," he explains, "that I'm a good business man as well as an actor." The trip, considering what he will get for the appearances, will more than pay for itself.

JACK MULHALL CHOSEN.

AFTER several weeks of searching and numberless tryouts of applicants for the leading role of the next Rex Ingram special, "Turn in the Night," Jack Mulhall made his choice. Jack Mulhall, who has grown steadily in popularity as a leading man, will appear opposite Alice Terry as the engaging ex-crook.

BYNG GETS BIG RECEPTION IN CANADA

Huge Throngs Greet New Governor-General in Streets of Quebec

Quebec, Aug. 10 (By A. P.)—Baron Byng of Vimy, Canada's new Governor General, arrived here today on the steamer Empress of France. His arrival being earlier than anticipated, he will be entertained privately until tomorrow morning, when he will be formally sworn in at the legislative building.

Thursday has been declared a civic holiday by the Mayor of Quebec in honor of the event, and the streets are gay with flags and bunting.

The popularity of the leader of the Canadian Corps during the campaigns of 1916 and 1917 was evidenced by the huge throngs assembled to greet the incoming Governor General.

A Far-Reaching Decision

Little Railroad's Permit to Issue Stock May Have Serious Results

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

The Interstate Commerce Commission has decided, in an opinion phrased most inappropriately and inadequately considering the importance of the principle involved, that the Paso & Southwestern Railroad Company may issue three shares of stock without par value for one share of stock with par value.

This is a little road and the decision involves only about $25,000,000, but the principle at issue involves a huge sum of money for the American people. It may involve a struggle in this country the result of which no man could predict.

Commissioner Eastman, as might be expected, is against this decision. In his mild, unheated fashion he gives his objections. He points out that this movement to substitute the stock of our public utilities having par value for stock without par value is nothing more or less than a scheme to avoid regulation of the issue of capital stock to investors by railroads and other public quasi-public corporations, in order that the bankers who control these corporations may continue to operate them for stock gambling purposes.

There is a great struggle going on now under the surface of our public life between honest public men on one side and the railroads and their minions on the other as to what shall be the basis for rate making.

The vice and the menace of this decision lies in the fact that it may well be considered the first step by the commission in recognition of the railroad's theory of "value" as the basis for its charges for freight and passengers.

From one point of view at least there is consolation in the recent tendency of the Interstate Commerce Commission to give the railroads about what they want. It is the last demonstration of the utter folly of attempting to regulate the railroads. But unregulated railroads would be worse than any kind of anarchy. Hence the next step must be public operation.

Intimate Story of Wilson

William F. McCombs Reveals Interesting Inside History Relating to the Ex-President

The Boston Sunday Advertiser is publishing after death an account written by William F. McCombs concerning his intimate relations with Ex-President Wilson during that period of transition from Wilson the Professor to Wilson the Politician and during the period of political gestation which preceded Mr. Wilson's elevation to the presidency.

It is an intimate story because the relationship between the two men was intimate and non-political. It was acquired during college years and was personal until the first and last break, which occurred after Mr. Wilson became President.

It is one of the most revealing, interesting and instructive political inside histories of the great events as they matured, which we have read in recent years. Mr. McCombs was a gentleman in the best sense of the word, and we may accept his statements of facts without hesitation. We may differ from him in some of the conclusions which he may deduct from these facts. But intelligent men and women will not differ much because the facts speak for themselves.

Even the first installment is sufficient to show without comment from Mr. McCombs the trend of the great vice of Wilson's character, a vice which did him as much harm, even when his intentions were good, as it did harm to the country. That bescting sin of Mr. Wilson's was the dictatorial habit which prevented him from consulting others concerning those matters about which they had a right to be heard. This obsession prevented him from consulting others even when consultation would have given fair weather to his own purposes. A child of this sin was his inability to tell the public the facts upon which he based his actions, and even when those facts would have helped him to win public approval and support of his policy.

The next installment in the next Sunday's Boston Advertiser will be as valuable and as interesting as the first. Those who have an interest in knowing how men are groomed for the presidency and how small beginnings grow from the combination of planning and of fortune until they reach great consummations will find the second installment worth reading.

When Lords Fall Out

That Quarrel Between the British Ministry and Northcliffe

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

The serious drought from which all England has suffered for the last two months seems to have affected other things than the vegetation. For certainly nothing less than midsummer madness, or being "crazy with the heat," to use a more expressive American phrase, can explain the puerile recent quarrel between the British Ministry and Lord Northcliffe.

We rather suspect that the average American will mildly sympathize with the British journalist in his comment upon the unfitness at least of Lord Curzon to be one of the British commissioners to the disarmament conference.

Gentlemen who marry their money, inherit their political prominence, and then assume superior and patronizing airs over those who have worked for both, do not appeal greatly to American favor.

Nor will the methods by which the British Minister for Foreign Affairs has manifested his resentment of Northcliffe's criticism tend to elevate him in American respect.

The virtue of his position Curzon looks upon the world as his backyard, and in it Northcliffe is not to be invited to play. No dinners at British Embassies for him.

When the British Ambassador at Washington was directed to withdraw the invitation he had issued to the distinguished London journalist to dine at the Embassy, the notice was given to the whole list of embassies and legations which, like the British drumbeat, encircle the world and keep pace with the sun in its daily round.

We have heard a lot in days gone by of the superior character of the British diplomatic service and have been asked to deplore the tendency of Americans to put merely men of sound common sense and the manners of men of the world in our diplomatic posts.

Yet we can hardly imagine an American Secretary of State taking this method of resenting a criticism, nor do we believe the average American Ambassador would be a party to such pettiness.

H.C. L. Stranger to Prague

PRAGUE, Aug. 10.—Americans who under very ordinary circumstances find it hard "to make both ends meet"—in America—can make them meet in Czecho-Slovakia in the twinkling of an eye, and make them meet 70 or 75 times for each dollar.

The smart, up-to-date city of Prague, not only acts as a professor of all kinds of history, but as a marvelous tonic as well. Everything is bright and gay, plenty of good hotels, restaurants and bars. The latter close at 3 a. m. There is an abundance of good food and wine, excellent beers, racing three times the week, and the greatest point of all in these bad times, the cost of living to the American is about one-eighth that of New York or Chicago.

At the present rate of exchange the prices at the leading hotels in Prague, Karlsbad, Marienbad, Liberes and Reichenberg work out as follows: Single bedroom, the best in the house, 60 to 70 cents a day; with bath and services of various sort, 80 cents to $1. Breakfast, from 15 to 30 cents; lunch or dinner with wine, coffee and liquors, 75 cents to $1.25 at the most. At smaller hotels the prices are exactly one-half of the above.

The best seats in the opera are 25 cents. Taxi rates are so ridiculously cheap that I omit description. Train rates, first-class passage from Eger to Prague, or Karlsbad to Prague, about $1.50; fast trains and everything else on the same reasonable basis.

Americans are already finding out the attractions of the country which is the eldorado of historians, political economists and pleasure-seekers. The venerable and yet charming city of Prague is inexhaustible in attractions of art, architecture, painting, music, etc. Its folks are very neighborly and respect the foreigner more than anywhere else. Even the American papers are to be had here—the cafes have most of the more important ones.

Results to Date of Prohibition

"What Has Prohibition Actually Accomplished to Date?" asked William Randolph Hearst editorially in the Boston American of July 3. One hundred dollars will be paid for the best answer of not more than 150 words received before August 15.

Gained Chief Purpose

Editor Boston American:

Prohibition has accomplished its chief purpose—the legal right to manufacture or sell alcoholic liquors to be used as a beverage is prohibited. It has closed the formerly legalized saloon and placed thousands of its victims in a new atmosphere. It has reduced misery, sickness, pauperism, crime and made thousands of homes happier.

It has promoted temperance, industry, health, and a desire of the former victims of the saloon to take a more active intrest in civic affairs. It has spread a light of intelligence which many failed to see when at the mercy of the saloon. It has promoted religion, loyalty, and every virtue which uplifts.

It has made communities safer; parents, children, husbands and wives less anxious as to the future of their loved ones. It has prominently set forth the folly of the past and acts as a beacon to guide the future.

Divorces Grow

LONDON, Aug. 10.—In more than 40 per cent. of the divorce suits heard during 1919, there were no children of the marriage.

Husbands are more faithful than wives.

The first five years of married life are the easiest.

These striking facts are gleaned from a collection of official statistics issued as a white-paper by the Home Office. It deals with the business of all civil courts in 1919 in general, and the Divorce Court in particular.

The statistics in themselves are a revelation of social progress and decline. They show that the courts dealt during that year with less than half the pre-war average. The figures for the county courts, in fact, were only about one-third of the normal number.

The number of divorce suits, however, rose from 2,689 in 1918 to 5,766 in 1919, an increase in one year of 114 per cent. The total for 1919 was three and a half times

Bernstein Tells of Tsarists' Plans for Jew Massacre

By Herman Bernstein

BRUTAL massacres of the Jews all over the world are part, and a salient part, of the program adopted by the Russian monarchists, in their well defined plot to overthrow democracy in Russia and proclaim a new Tsar.

Full details of the hideous plot are outlined by Herman Bernstein, author and well known writer on European affairs, in the series of articles now being published by the Boston American.

The latest of the series follows:

PROTOCOL No. 3

of the conference of the Committee of Saving the Fatherland.

February 12, 1921.

President, Gen. A. P. Krivoshein. Present: Gen. S. G. Klimovitch, Gen. K. L. Blaschev, Father Vostokov, P. S. Lukomsky, S. I. Durasovitch, V. D. Orlov, and D. M. Baranov. Secretary, A. Petrasevitch.

GENERAL KLIMOVITCH—At the previous conference I was instructed to work out a plan for our organization. As far as I could judge from the discussions, a way leading towards unity of action and co-ordination has been chosen. This may be attained only by means of the strictest centralization of our organization. First of all a centre must be created, in the beginning, of course, outside of Russia. This centre should consist of two commissions—a directing and an operative commission.

The directing commission, or council (Soviet), should supervise all the work, elaborate instructions, maintain connections with other social organizations, raise funds, etc.

The operative commission is to carry out the instructions of the directing council, and is also to organize new operative centres and bases upon the scenes of our activities, wherever these may be necessary.

In connection with the operative commission there must be established also an information department, which is to get all the news from the various agencies at work, concerning the frame of mind and the state of affairs in the enemy's camp. All this information must be properly assorted and systematized, and must serve as material for the elaboration of plans for our further activities.

I shall not dwell upon the details of the local organization centres and operative departments. I suppose that this will be done better by the agents themselves in accordance with local conditions and the instructions of the directing council. It should not be forgotten that the majority of our organizations will have to carry on their work in a strictly conspirative way. Therefore they should be given the widest freedom of action possible and the choice of appropriate means. We must only work out a general principle for the centralization of our work.

AGITATION DEPARTMENT.

DURASOVITCH—The project of your excellency consists of the organization of two commissions—a directing and an operative commission. It also embraces the formation of an information department. But it fails to take into consideration an agitation department. And yet it is essential not only to publish leaflets and appeals, but also to organize the distribution of appropriate literature abroad in order to win over the public opinion of the world on our side and to make a strong impression by our work upon the minds of the people in Western Europe. . . .

LUKOMSKY I dare say that this work is already being successfully done by many distinguished men in Western Europe. Not only a literary, but also an active struggle against the Jew. Masonry is now being conducted, intensively in Europe, and not at all without success. So there is no doubt that public opinion will always support us.

DURASOVITCH—So much the more reason for informing all those who are fighting on our side for the same idea about our plans and enterprises. The distribution of proper literature abroad is certainly not a considerable extent, morally discrediting Jewry, revealing to the world its criminality dark designs.

FATHER VOSTOKOV—I perfectly agree with you that literature and sermons are a great weapon in our hands. Therefore, the creation of an agitation department is not only desirable but even indispensable. Aside from publishing literature and proclamations, this department could also be useful in the preparation of sermons of instructions for priests and could also help to strengthen in the people the religion of Christ and hatred for its enemies. These tasks are so important that they must not be ignored under any circumstances.

PLAN AGREED TO.

GENERAL KRIVOSHEIN — Is there no one else who wishes to speak on this point? Perhaps your excellency may find it necessary to add something to your report.

GENERAL KLIMOVITCH — I am in agreement with the views expressed here about the organization of an agitation department. I did not mention it in my report because I regarded agitation as part of the activities of our committee and did not think of a separate agitation department. I considered that there would be a group of workers closely connected with the operative commission. But having listened here to the authoritative views, I entirely agree with the proposal to organize an agitation department.

GENERAL KRIVOSHEIN — As there is no objection on the part of those present to the principle of the question, I am inclined to consider the formation of a special agitation department as desirable. In order to make our further work fruitful, I propose that we choose at this session the members of the commissions and departments mentioned in the reports and the amendments, and that these members shall now be entrusted with the elaboration of further instructions and plans for each department.

ORLOV — Before proceeding to other questions, I should like to point out a certain detail which has been omitted in his excellency's project.

The project refers to the necessity of centralizing the work of the committee, but not a word is mentioned about the connection between the local centres and the agents. Nor does the project refer to the sending of agents of the committee into the enemy's camp—into the ranks of his army and other institutions. And yet this would be most important, for it would help to demoralize the enemy and hasten his defeat.

COUNCILS NAMED

GENERAL KRIVOSHEIN—As far as I understand your amendment, it deals with the work of our agencies. Such questions as the establishment of connections and the methods of demoralizing the enemy are technical questions. We were going to leave the discussion of these questions to the commissions and departments which will in this instance be more competent to discuss them. Therefore your amendment does not alter my proposition, and I suppose that there will be no objection to it.

Taking into consideration the participation of the gentlemen present, I would suggest that this conference appoint the following members of commissions and departments:

The directing council—I, General Klimovitch, Father Vostokov, Generals Blaschev and Lukomsky.

The operative commission—Generals Blaschev and Orlov.

The information department—Lukomsky and Baranov.

Agitation department — Father Vostokov, Generals Klimovitch and Durasovitch.

Of course each department is to have the right abroad to enlist the necessary number of associates and agents.

I suppose that the conference has no objection to this personnel of the commission and departments. I consider the work of the session at an end. The meeting is adjourned. The next session will take place on February 26. I ask that all commissions submit their reports at the next meeting.

VACATION

One cannot say for a certainty just what will be the thing one would most enjoy a week or a month or particularly several months from now.

Moods and needs and desires change with the passing of time.

Then why try to thrust a certain form of change or amusement upon a person weeks or months ahead merely to set your own mind at ease that the ones involved may be sure of a vacation.

If you know how you want to take your vacation, even a year ahead, well and good for you, but all are not so constituted alike and especially when it is not to be a partnership affair at all, but each for their individual needs.

A person might be glad and willing for the sake of companionship to do a certain thing at a certain time even if it cut off all hope of any other recreation.

But when companionship does not enter in at all the wants and needs of the one you seek to favor may take a very different turn from anything you could possibly guess, and yet be perfectly legitimate.

If you are the man of the house you will have learned that what is good for big corporations is best in home finance and you will have decided and allotted a certain sum for each to do as they like within reason
